SOUTHERN RAILWAY TO SPEND $14,000,000 FOR EXPANSION AS BUSINESS STIMULANT

Atlanta Warned To Act or Lose Housing Funds

PALMER CONFERS WITH OFFICIALS IN WASHINGTON

Government Authorities Expect $500,000,000 To Be Earmarked for Projects by June 1.

LOCAL GROUP ASKED TO SPEED PLANS

Cities in 11 Southern States Have Already Been Allotted Money.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—After formal conferences today with United States housing authority officials, C. F. Palmer, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, warned that there is danger of the city losing its chance of participating in the $500,000,000 government housing program unless early steps to this end are taken.

Palmer, who is here to attend sessions of the United States Chamber of Commerce meeting beginning tomorrow, cited a statement last week by Nathan Straus, administrator of the Federal Housing Authority, that the entire fund

COUNCIL TO MAKE DECISION TODAY

City council will decide whether or not to create a local housing authority when it considers important civic projects at its meeting this afternoon.

Passage of the measure to set up a local housing authority would seek some $8,000,000 to $15,000,000 for low cost housing deemed assured, it was said.

A special housing committee, headed by Alderman Robert Carpenter, last week recommended creation of the local housing authority, and Mayor Hartsfield has indicated he will approve it, provided the city does not become heavily involved financially.

Leaders who favored passage of the measure pointed out quick action is necessary if Atlanta expects to have any large sum allocated to it by the Federal Housing Authority.

Available for earmarking would, at the present rate, be exhausted by June 1.

In view of the statement of administrator Straus, Palmer said, "it is important that Atlanta get the machinery in motion for securing a part of the funds earmarked to its credit."

The Straus statement referred to was made in announcing the recent allocation of slum clearance funds and read:

"If the demands of local housing authorities for earmarking funds at the present rate, the $500,000,000 now available for earmarking under the United States housing acts of 1937 would be exhausted by June 1," the Atlanta chamber president said, "it is regarded as a national obligation on housing development, and Atlanta has made an extensive study

Twins Born Just Before Mother Dies

Girls Named, One as Mrs. R. V. Waldo Wished, the Other for Her.

A 31-year-old mother died in Piedmont hospital early yesterday afternoon two and a half hours after giving birth to twin daughters.

The twins, whose mother was Mrs. Robert V. Waldo, wife of the assistant cashier of the Travelers' Insurance Company, will be named Susan and Margaret.

It was learned that Mrs. Waldo, the former Miss Margaret Pace, of Hawkinsville, had selected the name Susan, if the child born to her was a girl.

One Is Susan.

So one will be named Susan, as Mrs. Waldo had wished, and the other will be named Margaret, for her mother, the grief-stricken father said.

The twins were reported in good conditions last night. They are identical, with light eyes and dark hair. One weighed six pounds and 12 ounces at birth, and the other weighed slightly more than seven pounds.

They were born within a few minutes of each other, at about 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and Mrs. Waldo died at about 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Heart disease was reported as the cause of the mother's death.

Mrs. Waldo was graduated from Decatur Girls' High school in 1924, coming to this city from her native Hawkinsville a few years previously. She was married to Mr. Waldo in December, 1936, and lived at 1 Prichard way, N. E.

Her husband has been associated with the insurance firm 11 years, coming here from Duluth, Minnesota.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Waldo is survived by a daughter by a previous marriage, Betty Kelly, 9, of Miami, Fla.; two brothers, James Pace, of Hawkinsville, and W. R. Pace, of Augusta, and a sister, Mrs. Pearl Adams, of Charlotte, N. C.

Funeral plans will be announced by Harry G. Poole.

Savannah Is Saved From Fate Of Being 'Woman Without Country'

NEW YORK, May 1.—(P)—The happiest woman aboard the S. S. Gripsholm today—so happy the tears brimmed in her eyes at sight of the Statue of Liberty—was little, white-haired Miss Christine Winter, for 37 years a music teacher in Savannah, Ga.

Fears that she might become a "woman without a country," regarded as an American citizen in her native Sweden and as a Swedish citizen in this country, were dispelled when immigration officials permitted her to hand.

UNIFICATION FOES MAP COURT FIGHT TO HALT MERGER

Judiciary Council Is Expected to Announce Decision on Constitutionality of Vote Tuesday.

CHURCH IN DEKALB DELAYS ACTION

Stone Mountain Group Will Not Form New Congregation at Present.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 1.—(UP)—Opponents of an already approved plan for union of the three branches of world Methodism tonight mapped procedure by which court action probably will be sought to prevent the merger.

Leaders in the movement against unification of the three denominations said legal action "undoubtedly" would follow if the church's judiciary council upholds a vote of the general conference of the southern church which ratified the consolidation.

Had Approved Plan.

The other two branches previously had approved the unity plan.

Court action probably will be in the form of a petition for an injunction restraining the new unified church from the acquisition of property of the southern branch.

The judiciary council—supreme tribunal of the church—was expected to announce its decision on a challenge to the constitutionality of a vote of the southern conference approved, 434 to 26, in an historic session Friday the plan for a united church encompassing 8,000,000 members.

Survey of Opinion.

A survey of opinion of the council indicated a majority believed the unification action was legal, although many of its members declined to commit themselves. M. E. Lawson, president of the council, said "the matter has not been decided, although some of us have our own opinions."

Five members of the college of bishops—John M. Moore, of Dallas; Sam R. Hay, of Houston; Hiram A. Boaz, of Fort Worth, and James Cannon Jr., of Los Angeles—will be retired because they have reached the age limit for active service. Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of Macon, has requested retirement because of ill health.

GROUP OPPOSING UNION DELAYS QUITTING CHURCH

A meeting called to consider formation of a new congregation of Stone Mountain Methodist Church, South—the first open break resulting from the unification vote of the general conference—ended dramatically and without action being taken yesterday.

Judge James C. Davis, of the Stone Mountain circuit superior court, who was elected temporary chairman of the meeting held in

Scheduled To Die for Murder of Friend, 78

MRS. ANNA MARIE HAHN.

ATTORNEYS SEEK TO SAVE WOMAN TRAFFIC DEATHS SHOW SHARP DROP

Mrs. Anna Hahn Is Scheduled To Die for the Murder of Aged Friend.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 1.—(UP)—A last-minute effort to save Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn, convicted Cincinnati poisoner, from the electric chair will be made here Tuesday when her attorneys argue for a stay of execution before Chief Justice Weygant, of the Ohio supreme court.

Mrs. Hahn is scheduled to die Wednesday, May 4, for the murder of Jacob Wagner, 78-year-old friend.

Joseph H. Hoodin, chief counsel for Mrs. Hahn, originally planned to request the stay of execution yesterday, but then altered his plans. Hoodin will ask the stay in order to have time to prepare briefs to take the case before the United States supreme court.

Mrs. Hahn remained calm in her death row cell at Ohio penitentiary. When in conference with Hoodin, the blond woman told him:

"I am ready to die next Wednesday if all this fight is just stalling off the final day."

Like Mother, Like Son, Lad, 17, Wins Contest

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 1.—(P)—Mrs. John Casparotti, the Moberly (Mo.) mother whose first novel, "Young Dr. Galahad," won a $10,000 national contest, isn't the only prize-winning member of her family.

Her 17-year-old son, John, won the interscholastic press association writing contest here Saturday. His prize winner, boosting a shoe store, suggested: "Get more mileage with our 1938 models. Try our half soles, as hard as a mother-in-law's heart."

Scattered Showers Are Forecast Today

Partly cloudy, with scattered showers probable in the afternoon, is the weather outlook for Atlanta today, according to the forecast issued last night at Candler airport weather office.

Temperatures today are due to range between 60 and 86 degrees. The mercury swung yesterday between a low of 62 degrees and a high of 83 degrees.

MINOR CLASHES MARK MAY DAY IN EUROPE, ASIA

One Killed and 80 Injured in Series of Riots in Poland as Million Parade in Moscow Square.

MORE THAN 100 ARE UNDER ARREST

Leftist Demonstrators Pelt Sir Oswald Mosley With Stones in London.

By THE UNITED PRESS.

Rain and raw winds in most of the world's capitals dampened the ardor of Sunday's May Day celebrations and there were few clashes between Leftist workers and Rightists, as compared with previous years.

The first report of a May Day fatality came from the small Polish town of Kielce where shots were fired when Socialists clashed with the Fascist "falanga" and one man was killed. About 80 were injured in a series of clashes throughout Poland. More than 110 were arrested.

British Laborites and Leftists observed the day in the customary fashion of clashing with Sir Oswald Mosley's Fascists, stoning Mosley as he spoke from the top of a van in the London district of Bermondsey. Several were arrested when mounted police rode into the melee.

Spectacular Show.

Russia, as usual, staged the most spectacular celebration and this year it took on a bitter anti-British tinge with banners and manifestos blaming British "reactionary methods" for suffering—in China, Spain, Austria and Czechoslovakia. More than 1,000,000 persons paraded past Josef V. Stalin in Red Square behind a display of Russia's military might.

More than 300,000 Leftists singing the "Internationale" paraded through Paris from the Bastille to the Place de la Nation but there were no disturbances, although thousands of police and mobile guards were hidden in side streets along the route.

It rained, either constantly or sporadically, in London, Paris, Moscow and Berlin.

Plebiscite Demanded.

May Day is the national Nazi holiday in the new German Reich and Hitler, leading Berlin's celebrations commemorating the fall of the Communists and Socialists, referred guardedly to "conditions of oppression" among the Reich's neighbors.

One of these neighbors, Czechoslovakia, heard the Sudeten Nazi leader, Konrad Henlein, shout new defiance to the Czech government in a series of German Day speeches which contained a militant demand for a Czech-Nazi plebiscite.

In Loyalist Spain, where May Day ordinarily is one of the year's biggest holidays, there were no demonstrations.

Nineteen Burn to Death in Crack-Up Of Italian Plane Against Mountain

ROME, May 1.—(P)—Nineteen persons, including the Albanian minister to Rome and a woman identified as an American, perished in the crash of a Rome-bound Italian airliner yesterday.

The Albanian minister was Djaver Villa.

All were returning from Tirana, Albania, where they attended the wedding last Wednesday of King Ahmed Zog and the former Countess Geraldine Apponyi, of Hungary, or witnessed attendant ceremonies.

Hunch Leads To Exact Spot Of Lost Body

13th Victim of Mountain Flood Is Found Under Water and Gravel.

JASPER, Ga., May 1.—A house painter's "hunch" yesterday morning ended the long quest for the body of Forrest Conner, 16, one of 13 victims of an unexpected mountain flood that April 7 swept them to death in the usually placid waters of Talona creek.

The body of Forrest was found, under water and two feet of gravel, just where Ed Chester, the house painter, who lives five miles down the creek, "had a feeling it would be," half a mile from the scene of the tragedy.

After the body was discovered an undertaker was called and final rites were said yesterday afternoon by the Revs. A. W. Bussey and G. F. Compton. The coffin was then lowered into the 33-foot-long grave where 10 other members of the Conner family were buried April 17 in placid Philadelphia churchyard, three miles north of here.

Thought Often of Tragedy.

Since the tragedy, when the Conner's combination home and store was toppled into the creek when a wall of water fed by a mountain cloudburst struck it full force, Chester, who lives at Talking Rock, had thought much about the death of his friends.

He participated in the many searches to find Forrest's body. Previously, the bodies of the other members of the family had been located. The body of Mrs. F. Carter Conner, the mother, was found 16 miles downstream. The others were found scattered from a mile on down the creek.

As time for the mass burial—an event which drew a crowd of 10,000 persons—approached, search for the lone missing body was intensified. A force of 150 CCC boys joined in the quest, so that Forrest could be buried at the same time as the others.

But the body was not found. The mass burial was held, and hope was abandoned of ever finding the body of Forrest. The search ended—until this morning.

It was then that Chester had a "hunch" the body was in the creek less than half a mile from where the Conner house stood. He told

PLAN IS TERMED AN EXPRESSION OF FAITH IN FUTURE

5,550 New Freight Cars Will Be Added to the System, Giving Work in Dozens of Industries.

RFC WILL FINANCE BIG DEVELOPMENT

Largest Order, for 2,000 Boxcars, Will Go to Alabama Manufacturer.

A $14,000,000 expansion program which, it is expected, will give great impetus to business and industry of the southeast and other parts of the country was announced yesterday by the Southern Railway system.

Headquarters of the railroad at Washington announced plans to buy 5,550 new freight cars, to add to present equipment. The order is the largest single one placed by any railroad in "some time."

Work on the new freight cars, which will bring employment to hundreds of persons, will be started as soon as the Interstate Commerce Commission approves the issuance and sale of securities to finance the cost.

RFC Financing.

The project will be financed through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to which application for the loan was made recently, according to Robert B. Pegram, vice president of the railroad, in Atlanta.

The largest single order, for 2,000 box cars, will go to the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing Company at Birmingham, Ala., the announcement stated.

Pegram said officials of the railroad, of which E. E. Norris is president, felt "the present was a good psychological time to go ahead with the project."

"The railroad is making these vast purchases in the hope of business improvement. It is an expression of faith in the future. It certainly ought to start something good."

Stimulate Business.

Developing this latter thought, Mr. Pegram pointed out that the huge order will stimulate business, industry and employment because constructing of the cars will require many raw materials and manufactured products.

"The cars will require the use of lumber, steel, rubber and a host of specialties," he said.

Besides the 2,000 box cars to be built at Birmingham, other cars will be built as follows:

1,000 box cars and 200 furniture cars and 50 mill-type gondola cars, by Mt. Vernon Car Manufacturing Company, Mt. Vernon, Ill.
1,250 high-side steel body gondola cars, by American Car & Foundry Company, St. Louis, Mo.
250 stock cars, by Ralston Steel Company, Columbus, Ohio.
700 low-side steel body gondola

Atlanta Urged to Act Quickly To Secure U.S. Housing Funds

Charles F. Palmer Confers With Officials in Washington.

of the subject both here and abroad, said the opportunity was at hand for the city to become the slum-clearance demonstration center of America.

"We have already made a splendid start with the Techwood and University projects put up under the FWA original housing program," he said. "Atlanta should adopt a program that is at least the equal of any other southern city."

Already some 33 cities in 11 southern states have received earmarkings aggregating $89,578,000 of the $500,000,000 fund. The largest of these projects is at New Orleans, where $18,000,000 has been tentatively approved. Other southern city allocations include Louisville, $8,000,000; Birmingham, $4,500,000; Miami, $2-

250,000, and Savannah, $2,700,000.

In addition to Savannah, $1,369,000 was recently earmarked for Augusta and $270,000 for Athens, bringing the Georgia total thus far to $4,339,000.

Palmer said the figure being talked about as suitable for Atlanta's needs ranged from $8,000,000 to $15,000,000, while many felt it should go even beyond the latter amount.

In his informal conferences with officials here he told them the subject was to be taken up by the Atlanta council this week with prospects for favorable action.

Up to date approximately $310,000,000 of the $500,000,000 has been earmarked.

GOLDWYN CREATES HOLLYWOOD STORM

Sam Stands Alone in Belief Film Products Are Super-Colossally Bad.

HOLLYWOOD, May 1.—(UP)—Sam Goldwyn, the Incorporated, Limited, and talkative head of the movie company bearing his name, will return home from Europe tomorrow to discover that he stands alone among picture makers in his belief that their product generally is super-colossally bad.

His competitors—some wouldn't talk for publication and some would—agreed upon two things:

1. That Hollywood's movies may not be art, but they are entertainment.
2. That Goldwyn, Inc., Ltd., talks too much.

All this bothered the mighty Goldwyn not at all. He reiterated in New York his statement that double features spell the downfall of Hollywood, that most movie producers are capable of producing nothing but noise—about themselves—and that European film manufacturers are beginning to steal their thunder.

H. M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers First National, summed up Hollywood's retort by saying:

"Goldwyn is talking too much. Never before has Hollywood been producing such good pictures as it is today. These excellent productions are raising the cultural standards of the entire world."

Many another movie executive replied even more vehemently, but quailed at seeing his words in print. One of the most important of them all, and perhaps the least known to the public, was not so bashful.

He was Herbert J. Yates, New York banker and silent partner in many a film enterprise, who said he believed Goldwyn's entire conception of the motion picture industry as an artistic pursuit was mistaken.

Stone Mountain Group Will Not Form New Congression at Present.

Stone Mountain Masonic hall, said that while the meeting was in progress he received a telephone call from the Rev. Zack Hayes, pastor of Epworth Methodist church.

Believes Merger Illegal. "The Rev. Mr. Hayes told me that he had just returned from the conference in Birmingham and that Bishop Collins Denny felt that the conference's judicial council would rule the merger illegal," said Judge Davis.

He also said the bishop, in view of this fact, had asked us to hold off on further organizing plans until the judicial council acts.

As a result of the call from the Rev. Mr. Hayes, Judge Davis said, the officers of the church and about a dozen members, who had gathered to discuss forming a new congregation, decided to adjourn and await the result of the council's action.

Meeting Adjourned. Judge Davis said the meeting adjourned, subject to call, and that the next meeting would be held in the church building.

He added that prior to the call from the Rev. Mr. Hayes, all those present at the meeting were "of one mind" in opposition to unification.

Judge Davis and other officers of the church resigned their posts Saturday. The judge had served many years as a trustee and as superintendent of the Sunday school. Other officers who resigned are J. R. Sams, Douglas McCurdy, L. E. Skelton, Carl Almand, DeWitt McCurdy and Dudley Johnson.

$124,000,000 ASKED FOR FIVE AIR BASES

Diversion of New Public Works Funds Proposed as Solution.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—A house appropriation subcommittee has under consideration a proposal to divert a portion of proposed new public works funds for construction of five major army air bases and improvements to existing army posts.

Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, of the house military committee, said he had asked the subcommittee to set aside $124,000,000 of the proposed new works money to build air bases authorized in 1935 in the Wilcox act.

The act stipulated one base should be established in the Atlantic southeast and Caribbean canal, one in the southeastern states proper, one in the Rocky mountain area and another in Alaska.

The War Department declined to reveal locations of the proposed air bases until funds for their construction are appropriated.

W. T. TOWNSEND DIES IN CARTERSVILLE

Former City Judge Was Stricken While Motoring.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., May 1.—Judge William T. Townsend, formerly on the city court bench and a prominent lawyer, died at his home here tonight.

Judge Townsend was stricken ill after motoring to Adairsville, and was brought back to his home, where he died at about 10 o'clock. He had been in good health until taken ill.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Clyde Shaw and Miss Bessie Townsend; two sons, Carter Townsend, of Macon, and Tom Townsend, University of Georgia student; six brothers and a sister.

3 Weddings Will Unite Once-Potent Houses

Romanoff Princess Describes 100-Year-Old Nuptial Gown.

By GRAND DUCHESS KIRA KIRILLOVNA, OF RUSSIA. (Written for the Associated Press) POTSDAM, Germany, May 1.—My wedding dress is a family heirloom. It belonged to my grandmother, the Duchess of Edinburgh, and later Duchess of Coburg, who was an only daughter of Emperor Alexander II.

It came from her own country, from Russia, where it was made for her and where she wore it as a Russian grand duchess.

It is an old court dress of heavy silver brocade, richly embroidered, cut low off the shoulders, very slim at the waist; the long sleeves slit open so that the arms are free. The heavy train hangs from the waist and is three meters long.

The gorgeous embroidery was made by nuns in a convent famous for its exquisite needlework.

This dress, perhaps (and I think surely) the only example of its kind left, is now nearly 100 years old.

It lay for many years without coming to the light of day. The first time it was worn again after the war and revolution was 12 years ago when my sister, Grand Duchess Marie, Princess of Leiningen, was married in it. Now it is to be worn once more; hardly any alterations or touches were necessary to make it fit.

The Russian national headdress, the famous kokoshnik, goes with it, or a diadem, and a long lace veil and silver low heeled shoes.

No modern dress could equal this one in beauty of style or material. It is something unique, belonging to golden days of the past, the past of a great and rich country which supplied the world with so many things of beauty.

ALABAMA TO HOLD BALLOT TOMORROW

Governor Graves Issues 'No Bayonets' Pronouncement Regarding Primary.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 1.—(AP)—A "no bayonets" pronouncement by Governor Graves and a tangle over asserted Republicans serving as officials at the polls in one county accentuated today Alabama's tense anticipation of the Tuesday vote-casting in a Democratic primary.

A record outpouring of votes—upward of 300,000—was forecast, as the Democrats choose among five candidates for the gubernatorial nomination.

No issue of national consequence was involved, but the lines of fealty were sharply drawn as to gubernatorial candidates—Frank M. Dixon, Birmingham lawyer; J. G. Goode, Alabama commissioner of agriculture; State Senator D. H. Riddle; State Representative Chauncey Sparks, and James H. Arnold, Birmingham merchant.

Speaker William B. Bankhead was unopposed in the congressional field. Likewise, Senator Lister Hill had no opposition. Alabama's senior senator, John H. Bankhead, does not come before the voters again until 1942.

Wide interest centered in another comeback effort of frock-coated former Senator Thomas J. Heflin seeking the fifth district congressional seat occupied by Joe Starnes.

CLEARWATER, Fla., May 1.—(AP)—Raye Paige, former clerk and governess who entered the home of a 76-year-old retired physician as his daughter in response to a newspaper advertisement, said today she was "very happy."

The 24-year-old girl was selected from 33 applicants who answered Dr. C. S. Bolender's newspaper advertisement for a daughter.

"I am very happy here," Miss Paige declared. "Dr. Bolender is like a grandfather to me. I am free to come and go as a please, and to have dates if I wish, though I don't go out very much."

Miss Paige, daughter of a farm couple living near Moultrie, Ga., said Dr. Bolender would not attempt to adopt her legally. She said she had parental permission to enter his home.

his "hunch" to a neighbor, Zeb Haygood, a highway department employee.

"Zeb, I believe I know where Forest's body is," Chester told Haygood. "Let's go see if we can find it."

Haygood agreed, and the men went to the spot where Chester's "feeling" had told him the body lay. They waded into the creek, which is now low, going in to a depth of between two and a half and three feet.

They came to a deep hole, and there, under two feet of rock and gravel, the body was found.

"I had a hunch he was in that hole," said Chester. "I don't know what made me think so, but I just did."

In Deepest Part. The point where the body was found is one of the deepest in the creek.

The Conner home was at White-stone Landing, 10 miles from here. Besides Forest, those who lost their lives were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Carter Conner; James Conner, 14; Harold Conner, 10; Claude Conner, 9; Mildred Conner, 12; Oleta Conner, 8; Flora Sue Conner, 3 1/2; Eugene Conner, 18 months; Mrs. Conner's brother, Carl Lindsey, and Thelma Ponder, 6, and her sister Bonnie, 4, who were visiting the Conners and who perished while spending their first night away from home.

The Rev. Bussey and the Rev. Compton officiated at the mass burial April 17.

Grand Duchess Kira Will Marry Prince Louis, of Hohenzollerns.

BERLIN, May 1.—(UP)—More than 100 guests gathered in Cecilienhof castle at Potsdam today for the first two of three wedding ceremonies which will unite the two once mightiest royal houses in Europe—the Romanoffs and the Hohenzollerns.

Prince Louis Ferdinand, 31-year-old grandson of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm II, and Princess Kira, 29-year-old daughter of Grand Duke Cyril, pretender to the non-existent throne of Russia, will be the principals in the three ceremonies.

Early tomorrow, according to German tradition, there will be a brief civil wedding at the Potsdam registrar's office. At 11 a. m. the couple, whose romance began under a Christmas tree in Potsdam last December 23, will be wedded again in the Russian orthodox service in Cecilienhof castle.

Then they will go to Doorn, The Netherlands, where the old wood-chopping ex-Kaiser lives in exile, for the Protestant ceremony on Wednesday.

The "love at first sight" courtship between the son of the former crown prince of Germany and blond, blue-eyed Kira was the speediest in post-war royal history. Prince Louis Ferdinand met Kira in his mother's castle two days before last Christmas. They trimmed the Christmas tree together and at nightfall the prince led Kira to his father, the former crown prince, and said:

"This is the girl of my choice."

Prince Louis Ferdinand, who learned about the automobile industry as a mechanic in the Ford factory in Detroit and is now a reserve officer in the Reich air corps, speedily obtained the consent of his gruff aged grandfather, who is still head of the house of Hohenzollern.

Swedish birth.

Then she was informed she might have difficulty in gaining entry to the United States.

"And I couldn't stay in Sweden," she said. "It was so cold. I had become too used to the beautiful warm sunshine in Georgia to live in Sweden ever again. I missed the sunshine until I cried."

"The customs and the life they live over here seemed not so good after I had become accustomed to the American way. Just little things—like the way they treat the women. The women are just slaves. They work so hard and the men seem to expect them to do it. American men are different. I'll never go back again."

Miss Winter said the first thing she was going to do was to take out citizenship papers—"even if I am pretty old, now," she added. "And I'm going to teach again, all my pupils in Savannah."

JUDGE G. Y. TIGNER DIES IN COLUMBUS

Former Member of Assembly of Georgia.

COLUMBUS, Ga., May 1.—(AP)—Judge Germanicus Young Tigner, judge of the city court of Columbus, died at his home here tonight after an illness of four weeks. He was 81 years old.

He had been judge of the local court for 25 years and was formerly court reporter for the Chattahoochee circuit prior to his admission to the bar more than 50 years ago. He was also a member of the general assembly of Georgia from Muscogee county about 50 years ago.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning here.

Mr. Pegram said the cars would be built to supplement present equipment, and not merely as replacement of old equipment.

He said he was hopeful I. C. C. approval would be granted in the near future. He said he did not have details concerning the cost of the different types of cars to be built, but that the box cars would be standard cars, with steel frames and lumber sides.

Not Only in Southeast. He added that he and other officials felt "the orders would add impetus to business, industry and employment which would have effect not only in the southeast, but in other parts of the country."

Mr. Pegram explained that furniture cars are simply extra size box cars, that gondola types are used to haul coal, low-side cars for hauling road-building machinery, stone, etc, stock cars for cattle, sheep and other livestock, and flat cars for hauling machinery, poles, lumber and like articles.

SHERIFF TO QUIZ FROM SUSPECT

Dr. Trotsky Held in Torture Deaths of 2.

SAN ANGELO, Texas, May 1.—(UP)—Sheriff Anderson, of Van Horn, Texas, arrived tonight questioning Dr. Roman Trotsky, connection with the torture murders of Mrs. Weston G. Frome a her daughter, Nancy.

Anderson said that Trotsky, ex-convict also known as Nicolai and Lukian, had not been connected with the slayings in investigations so far but was known to have been in El Paso about a month ago.

Trotsky was arrested on a desertion charge by Deputy Sheriff White.

CONGRESS URGED TO SPEED ACTION ON DEFENSE BILLS

Colons Get Proposals for Additional Outlays for Army and Navy.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(P)—President Roosevelt is quietly pressing congress to speed action on military and naval measures of unprecedented peace-time scope, entirely apart from the pending $1,156,000,000 fleet expansion program.

Little noticed in the midst of debate on the bigger navy bill, congress has received from the White House, navy or army in the last few days proposals for additional outlays totaling more than $185,000,000 to:

1. Start work without delay on two more 35,000-ton, $70,000,000 battleships to replace obsolescent vessels. These dreadnoughts would be the fifth and sixth to be started within the next few months. They would put the United States in the van of the world naval race, at least temporarily. Great Britain and Germany each have five building or provided for by appropriations.

2. Build a $5,000,000 naval air base at Kodiak island, and a $450,000 army air field, both in the territory virtually unfortified Alaska.

3. Build a seaplane base on Midway island, extending the

2 Months Needed for 2-Hour Job Atop 13,250-Ft. Alaskan Mountain

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 1.—(P)—For two hours work at the peak of a 13,250-foot mountain, Bradford Washburn Jr., youthful, appearing Harvard geographer and explorer, left today to spend the next two months risking his life on the icy slopes of an Alaskan mountain range.

The two hours will be spent atop Mount St. Agnes, making maps, taking ranges with surveying instruments, and photographs of the surrounding terrain with a panoramic camera which requires only three exposures to encompass the 360 degrees of horizon.

The remainder of the two months, Washburn said, will be spent in reaching the peak, and equally as important to the explorers, making their way back to the civilization of Valdez.

Mount St. Agnes is nearly a mile under the knife-edged ridge of Mount Lucania, 17,150 feet above sea level, which Washburn and a companion, Robert Bates, of Philadelphia, scaled last summer, the first humans to reach its top.

OTTO F. BADING, 59, FINAL RITES TODAY

Ex-Labor Official To Be Buried in Greenwood.

Schooner Yankee Sails Into Port From Thrilling 35,000-Mile Tour

Twenty Voyagers Poisoned by Eating Fish Off Pitcairn Island, Where They Acquire Anvil Taken From Famed Ship, Bounty.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., May 1.—(P)—Loaded with curios and tales of danger and adventure on the high seas, the schooner Yankee, a former Dutch pilot boat, sailed into this old fishing port today from an 18-month, 35,000-mile cruise of the world.

Smiling and happy after their visit to many out-of-the-way spots of the globe, the voyagers joked about their brush with death near Pitcairn island the skipper, who left a farm at Hadley to go to sea, proudly told of his baby's first steps, taken while the Yankee sailed the Indian ocean.

The captain, Irving Johnson, said virtually all of the 20 persons aboard were poisoned seriously after eating fish they had just caught 180 miles from Pitcairn island last year. The Yankee managed to make the island without any casualties, and the sailors regained their sea-legs while visiting descendants of the Bounty mutineers.

The skipper said the poisoning might have been caused by marine growth which the fish had eaten.

The Yankee travelers repaid kindnesses of the Pitcairn islanders by ferrying 20 tons of hard wood 100 miles from another island for them.

While on Pitcairn, Captain Johnson obtained the anvil and part of the rudder of the famed Bounty.

FLOOR FIGHT EXPECTED ON FEDERAL ROAD AID

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(P)—House leaders said privately tonight they would be unable to prevent a $475,000,000 program of federal highway aid for 1940 and 1941 from reaching the house floor at this session.

They added, however, they still were debating the advisability of attempting to reduce the amount involved.

THE BRITISH-FRENCH PACT

The two great democracies of Europe, Great Britain and France, have concluded their long looked-for, but repeatedly delayed, defensive agreement. The strengthening of the entente between the two nations embraces co-ordination of land, sea and air forces for the defense of common interests and ideals; joint action for a peaceful settlement of central European problems and a continuation of non-intervention in the Spanish civil war.

The pact gives the entente complete domination of the seas. Its effect in the Mediterranean, where Britain has been tied because of the disagreement with Mussolini, is beyond measure. Coming hard upon the accord with Italy, it releases a tremendous sea force for effective pressure elsewhere. Britain can now move warships practically at will to Singapore, the Far East, or to the North Sea, without fear of a disastrous attack in the rear or against its line of communications.

The incident of the past few days in China, when immediate release of a British ship was accomplished by a stern demand upon Japan, foreshadows the tremendous weight of this power. Command of the amalgamated fleets, for more effective operations, would be solidified under the direction of the British admiralty.

So, once again British sea power would dominate. It was this power that broke the back of 17th century Spain and wrecked Napoleon's dreams. And it is far greater in ratio than in 1914—now at eight to one against Germany. Combined with France, the ratio jumps to eleven to one. The combination just about ends German hopes on the high seas.

In case of war, the combined armies, tremendous in potential strength, would be commanded by a French officer, as at the close of the World War. The resources behind them would be incomparably greater than anything Germany could muster. French trained reserves alone, built up for many years against the day when needed, approximate 6,000,000. British man power is undoubtedly greater, although it would probably be slow in reaching its peak of availability.

A comparison of air forces also indicates a preponderance in favor of the entente. With Italy out of the picture, and the resources of the United States shut off from Germany, but available to the entente through Canada, the scales would rapidly be pressed down against the Germans as in the last contest.

The immediate effect of the new agreement will, in all probability, be to make war more remote than ever at this time. That is, unless Hitler, with a feeling it is now or never, throws all caution to the winds and plunges headlong as a last resort. But with the cards stacked against him, with other nations in the mood to play for peace, the indications are he will accept the alternative of peaceful negotiations to satisfy his ambitions, as far as possible.

COURTROOM CIRCUS.

The inclination in recent years to introduce the circus atmosphere into the courtroom at important trials has done as much as anything to bring the American system of criminal procedure into disrespect. It was not without significance, therefore, that Judge Paul S. Etheridge of Fulton superior court, halted proceedings in a recent important case to put a stop to unsuited by-play among those participating in the trial.

Bringing criminals to justice is a serious business. While the public has always indicated a tremendous interest in such proceedings many people, in no way connected with the case in hand, have fallen into the habit of flocking to court merely out of curiosity. The feigned, grinning nonchalance of the criminal, his disdain for authority, the prevailing holiday atmosphere, all tend to minimize the seriousness of the offense.

Certain types of lawyers do not hesitate at taking advantage of this situation to publicize their own interests. They address many allegedly facetious remarks to the galleries, instead of to the court, simply for the laugh. The judge is thus forced to spend no small part of his time endeavoring to maintain at least a modicum of dignity in his court.

Order in the court is essential if trials are to be conducted with dignity and impartiality. The duty of maintaining a proper respect for the court, however, rests squarely on the presiding judge. If he firmly indicates that sideshow attractions will no longer be tolerated, it will tend to restore some of the lost deference to American criminal procedure.

HELPING BRITISH REARMAMENT.

It is apparent the signing of an Anglo-Italian friendship accord, with the prospects of similar agreements with other nations, will not slacken British rearmament. It is now frankly admitted, however, that one phase of the program has lagged. The output of bombing and pursuit planes, because of inadequate facilities, has not kept pace with production of other implements of war.

But immediate steps are being taken to remedy this deficiency. The realist Chamberlain has sent a commission to the United States. And, according to advance information, the Britishers will be looking far beyond immediate necessities.

The commission will not only purchase airplanes now, to augment the home output, but is expected to do what actually amounts to buying them in advance for production and delivery during prospective future wars. This is to be accomplished by the simple procedure of inducing American plane builders, under the urge of large orders, to set up branches in Canada.

A factory at Windsor, across the border from Detroit, is in prospect. This is one of the centers of the nation's supply of skilled labor. Thus, it is planned to tap American resources at the very heart. And the peacetime law, the wisdom and effectiveness of which has been frequently questioned anyway, will be neatly and legally sidestepped.

So the flow of munitions from this side of the Atlantic probably will continue during war as well as in times of peace. At least, such is the conclusion to be drawn as regards Great Britain.

A FORESIGHTED BUILDER.

When the American Institute of Architects awarded its gold medal "for the most distinguished service to the profession," it selected Paul Philippe Cret for the honor. It exercised splendid judgment. Since he came to this country from his native France more than 38 years ago, he has designed, and collaborated with others in designing, many of the nation's most beautiful and useful structures.

Among them, to name only a few, are the Folger Shakespeare library, the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Federal Reserve Bank at Philadelphia, the Reserve Board building in Washington and the new buildings of the University of Texas. The mark of his genius may also be found on the Pan-American Union building in Washington, recognized as one of the nation's most perfect examples of architectural beauty. He also designed American war memorials at Chateau Thierry, Bony and Varennes, France.

One of Mr. Cret's most unusual characteristics, uncommon among architects of his period, is that he always refused, even years ago, to go in for skyscrapers. At a time, too, when this type of structure was so widely acclaimed as the sure-fire building of the future. His decision was backed by the conviction that such tall buildings, in areas already congested, would create an unsolvable traffic problem. It seems now he was right, although, at the time, this "reactionary" notion brought forth many a smile from his confreres.

Thus Mr. Cret, who saw opportunity in a new land, had unusual foresight as well as professional ability.

WITH MILD REGRET

The German government has notified the United States Department of State that it will not participate in the New York World Fair, a decision which, it appears, will not be overly regretted by the fair management or by the citizens of the United States.

Under present conditions the German government can not offer any material contribution to the future of the world, which is the theme of the fair.

The government of this country was notified because invitations to participate were extended through President Roosevelt.

Fair officials greeted the news with equanimity, immediately announcing that the return of the 100,000 square feet allotted Germany was welcome, since it could now be allocated to several smaller nations which had not been able to obtain space for their exhibits.

However does a French politician manage to exist, picking up only an occasional day's wages as premier?

Crop control must simply carry on till we return to the first American principle of 14 side dishes with a 50-cent country dinner.

Absent-mindedness has featured the news of recent days. Comedian Laurel, of the films, has married the same girl three times, and another treaty in Europe has been signed.

Next to money, perhaps, a shower bath in a strange house is the hardest thing to regulate.

Editorial of the Day

COOLER LAMPS

(From the New York Herald Tribune.)
Few facts of science have waited longer to be used than phosphorescence. As early as 1604 Italian experimenters made the so-called false phosphorus of Bologna, now known to be a phosphorescent sulphide of barium. Many years have passed since different kinds of phosphorescence were distinguished: that of luminous living creatures in the sea, that of chemical reaction as phosphorus itself burns slowly in air, that caused in certain gems and chemicals by invisible ultra-violet rays and which explains the shining yellow diamonds of the ancient kings. Yet only now is this last variety, now called fluorescence, put to use in the new cooler and better colored lamps shown last week for the first time to the New York Electrical Society as a joint enterprise of the lamp departments of General Electric and Westinghouse.

Ordinary electric lamps are really heaters. Light is only incidental; so much so that modern ideas of very bright light for factories or offices meet a chief obstacle in the enormous quantities of heat also set free and which must be got rid of in summer. Even the new fluorescent lamps are not quite heatless, but they are a step. Inside the half-yard glass tubes of which the new lamps consist are caged electric arcs, playing through vapor of mercury. This produces plentiful ultra-violet rays kept inside by the glass. On inner surfaces of the tubes are thin layers of powders that shine under the rays, like a dust of ancient yellow diamonds. This fluorescence of the powders produces light much less contaminated with heat than happens in ordinary bulbs.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALFORD AND ROBERT KINTNER.

LUNCH CALLED FARCE WASHINGTON, May 1.—Henry Ford's lunch with the President was the best piece of pure farce comedy played in these parts for many a long year. Unfortunately, it took place behind closed doors, so that it's a little difficult to get the dialogue straight.

Emissaries of the White House, for example, are busily putting it about that Mr. Ford was really tongue-tied throughout the interview, that all the stories of what Mr. Ford said to the President are specimens of Mr. Ford's staircase wit. In view of Mr. Ford's natural loquacity, this scarcely seems possible. Moreover, some incidents of the luncheon are impartially vouched for. They are therefore here presented for what they may be worth in entertainment.

The meal began happily enough. The President is understood to have remarked that he had had a letter from his mother calling Mr. Ford a "fine American," and just the sort who ought to lunch at the White House. That apparently started the flow of reminiscence, for the President talked of old days at Hyde Park, and Mr. Ford recalled his early years in the motor industry for some time.

THE FARCE BEGINS The bird of peace which had hovered briefly over the luncheon table took flight, however, when economic subjects entered the conversation.

The best authenticated morsel of Ford-Roosevelt dialogue in this connection, which is also the most amusing, began with a question by the President as to whether Mr. Ford had any plans to bring about recovery.

"No," replied Mr. Ford drily, "I haven't any and I don't think you have either."

In natural deference to Mr. Ford's position, some of the talk concerned the automobile business. The President seems to have had some hope of persuading Mr. Ford to make a gentlemen's agreement with the other motor manufacturers to limit production on a quota system. He was also interested in the idea of annual wages in the motor industry—an idea which once fascinated, but now repels Mr. Ford. He has begun to irritate Mr. Ford himself. It is said that the President referred briefly to both the quota and the annual wage scheme, but Mr. Ford showed plainly that he would have none of them.

Evidently the mention of a gentlemen's agreement with his competitors aroused Mr. Ford, for he is understood to have aired his theory of the alliance against himself between Walter P. Chrysler and John L. Lewis, and to have told the President that he had said elsewhere, that in furthering the cause of the CIO, the administration has really served the large bankers.

HENRY AND MARRINER It seems, however, that the real clashes were not between the President and Mr. Ford, but between Mr. Ford and Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board. Mr. Eccles had been brought in by the President as his second when Mr. Ford insisted on the presence at the luncheon of his public relations adviser, W. J. Cameron.

Whether or not Mr. Eccles had cherished the hope of converting Mr. Ford to the New Deal's program, he appears to have prepared considerable propaganda material. The first Eccles sermon offered by Mr. Ford, so the story goes, was on the beauties of the administration housing program.

"I've done more for housing myself than the government has," snapped Mr. Ford, who has large workmen's projects at his factories. Mr. Eccles is not easily discouraged, however. After his disappointment on housing, he is said to have whipped out a memorandum defending the administration's new spending program. In the memorandum was embedded the familiar Eccles maxim, "the more you spend, the quicker the recovery." Mr. Ford's answer to this is understood to have been a firm statement that "the less this country spends, the quicker the recovery."

And, finally, Mr. Eccles is reported to have tried to discuss the automobile business with Mr. Ford. An argument promptly developed, in the course of which Mr. Eccles was quite naturally forced into the position of telling Mr. Ford how his own industry should be run. This Mr. Ford is stated to have met with the simple remark:

"I think I've done pretty well in the business myself."

Whatever Mr. Ford said to Mr. Eccles during the meeting, even if it is true, their conversation is not half as authentic as its source would indicate, it is certain Mr. Ford took a violent dislike to Mr. Eccles. After he reached New York, he couldn't get him out of his mind. Among other things, he asked for the Eccles history. On being told Mr. Eccles was a Mormon, he said musingly: "That's funny. That's a well-organized business."

FITTING CLIMAX Altogether, the Ford-Roosevelt encounter seems to have been a fitting climax to the many efforts to bring the two men together. The first attempt, made by the late Senator Couzens, was nearly successful. But Mr. Ford got into trouble with the NRA and refused the President's invitation.

Thereafter Senator Couzens tried once or twice again. When Senator Brown succeeded to the Couzens' seat, he too had his crack at it. The man who won out in the end was the President's brother-in-law, G. Hall Roosevelt, who is also in the employ of the Ford Commercial Credit Company. Mr. Roosevelt predicted to the President that Mr. Ford could indeed be converted to the New Deal, which probably explains Mr. Eccles' conversion to the New Deal, which picture of Mr. Ford leaving the White House to rally the country to the administration standard. Indeed, the advance notices were almost as funny as the play itself, convincing enough though they were.

Just a Word

Of Thanks.

To that unbelievably numerous horde of friends, known and unknown, who have taken the trouble to send a wire or letter or card, to telephone a message, carrying encouragement and good wishes, appreciation and kind words, about these new radio broadcasts I am making every evening over WGST, may I say a most sincere thank you.

It has helped through a difficult job, tremendously.

For you must know that fate, or something, was unkind to me last Monday. For the first time in many years I can't remember a similar experience—I woke up last Monday morning with a throat so hoarse I could scarcely speak. And the first broadcast was at 6:15 that evening.

I tried all kinds of things. Went to the doctor Monday afternoon and followed his directions meticulously. Managed to get through that opening night.

Tuesday afternoon the throat seemed worse and I thought it would be impossible to go on the air at the time scheduled that night, 6:45. So it proved Wednesday, too. But I made it by Thursday.

Now, of course, the hoarseness has all gone. And, beginning tonight, will be able to talk to you all over the country, and to my own reactions thereto, without all that trouble.

But, for your kindness during the tough times, thanks again.

The Best Road to Success.

Though he had no idea that his method is, really, the surest road to all business success, a certain well-known automobile man charted that road when he recently explained his philosophy of business.

"This is what he said:

"I am not in the business of selling automobiles and I never concern myself with the thought of profits. Twenty years ago I entered business without any capital of my own except a conviction that there was an infallible law of recompense. So I founded my business on strict honesty, a practical and thorough application of the Golden Rule, and a determination to adjust my transactions to the theme of service. I made my business a 'giving' business, and left the 'getting' to the law of recompense. Within three months my business was showing a $75,000 turnover. In prosperous years and through years of depression I have never experienced a profitless year. Don't ask me if business is good. It's always as good as I can make it."

If you'll study that, to learn exactly what this automobile man means, it may prove extremely valuable.

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Wednesday, May 2, 1888:

"A pleasant little incident occurred yesterday evening at the home of Master Car Builder A. B. Corinth, 68 Richardson street. This was the presentation to him, and on behalf of the East Tennessee coach department, of an elegant silver water set."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Schmeling. NEW YORK, May 1.—It is a little too early, but every day I turn to the sport page expecting to read that Joe Louis, the heavyweight champion of the world, has broken a hand in a training contest, necessitating the postponement of his fight with Max Schmeling, the hero of the Hitler youth. This really cannot be expected to happen until about the first or second week in June, as the date set for the struggle is June 22.

After that Louis would need two months for mending, for this would be a very serious fracture and his recovery would bring us deep into the month of August. And after that, according to tradition, the champion would be entitled to a tune-up contest in which to test whether the injury had healed sufficiently to permit him to do himself justice in a contest involving the highest bauble in fistiana's realm. Training for the tune-up contest would require four weeks, thus throwing the tune-up bout back to the middle of September. And then, in simple justice, Louis would need two weeks' rest before going into training again for the meeting with Schmeling, which would take four weeks more.

That would defer the championship fight until November, which is football season and no time of the year for the presentation of an outdoor prize fight, as every heroic sportsman knows. So the hero of the Hitler youth would have to be chivalrous and bide his time until the summer of next year.

There might be some who would doubt the genuineness of a broken hand in view of the fact that Schmeling knocked out Louis the last time. But the injury could be substantiated by X-ray photographs of which there is a large file available in the hospital libraries at all times. In fact, a broken hand could be authenticated by an X-ray photograph right now, and a fracture would be consistent with the best traditions of pugilism.

Long-Deferred The Nazis of Return Match our own Nazis, of course, would regard this as a dirty trick, but pugilism is very much like Nazism, and it may be said that there is no trick dirtier, but that a Nazi would play it on the other party if he had a chance.

Moreover, Schmeling himself has set precedents which would justify the fracture of one of Louis' hands.

Soon after Schmeling came to this country he was matched to fight a slashing tiger named Whoops O'Malley in Boston. Mr. O'Malley was called Whoops because he had a rather pronounced development of his left brisket and the customers would emit falsetto cries of "whoops" whenever an opponent struck him there. He was stout and pugacious, however, and Mr. Schmeling developed some diplomatic equivalent of the broken hand, declining to have traffic with him.

Later on Schmeling won the bauble, as it is called by a special favor of Jim Farley and the New York Prize Fight Commission, which declared the bauble to be at stake in his contest with Jack Sharkey when obviously it was not. He promised to give Sharkey a return match as a return favor to Mr. Farley and the commission, but returned to Germany, and the next year fought Willie Stribling instead. He knew he could beat Stribling, but he had doubts about Sharkey, because Sharkey had been striking him with furious jets and rights to the face ever since he had a chance to win their previous match and the bauble on a foul.

The Case of The Prize Fight C. O. M. is a man who is a palter for the Nazi dictatorship long before Hitler rose to power, might reasonably forbid the fight on political grounds, having stopped one some years ago on social grounds. That was a rank case of class discrimination in which Ensign Fioremonte, the step-father of John Jacob Astor, was refused permission to fight Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom for the light-heavyweight bauble. Determined to keep the grand old game democratic, the commissioners ruled that no step-father of John Jacob Astor ever should have a chance to win the second highest bauble in the realm.

As the hero of the Nazi youth, Schmeling should be treated according to his own precedents and an adaptation of David Harum's version of the golden rule, "Do unto a Nazi as he would do unto you and do it best."

Would the Gentle Ewe Be Gentle Still If She Had the She Wolf's Fangs?

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

There are two methods of dealing with our fellow men, and the method each of us employs depends on his temperament and the state of his liver and the quality called character.

Free and democratic men, who claim liberty as a natural human right and concede it to others of all classes, prefer the way of peace, co-operation, fair play and fellowship.

Other men prefer the way of Fascism and Stalin's Communism—the way of old Prussia and modern Japan—the way of force and fear and the law that might is right.

The way of force is as ancient and merciless as nature; the way of fellowship as new as civilization and compassion.

And since the veneer of civilization is thin and easily broken, and the best men are close to the primitive, no one knows, until he obtains authority and power, whether his belief in freedom and fair play is an appetite or a principle.

Young parents resolve to train their child by means of love and patience and justice; but they soon discover that force saves time and nerve-strain, and they are rare specimens if they do not enforce their will by the simple process of overpowering the child. Pulling a child by the arm, with a spank for acceleration, is so much quicker than argument.

The free man must often choose between the two methods in dealing with his neighbors. One of them unintentionally offends him, or one hesitates to give him needed co-operation, or some of them fail to act as he thinks they should.

If he has no power to hurt them, he will perform try the gentle way of persuasion and soft answers and appeals to reason and justice.

But what if he has power? There is the test of his sincerity. Does he still speak kindly and reason patiently? Is he still willing to listen and forgive?

Or does the knowledge of his power prompt him to roar in rage? "I'll break you for that!" or, "if you won't do my way willingly, by George, I'll make you do it!"

That is Fascism—the new old-way of governing human beings, where it gains the power to rule, might alone makes right, and liberty is dead forever.

REPRESENTING GEORGIA

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—With the controversial wage-hour bill successfully stymied by the rules committee of the lower chamber, for the time being at least, the Georgia congressional delegation finds a solution to the vexing agricultural problem which, it is claimed, has been created through operation of the new farm control act.

Neither cotton nor tobacco growers of the state, the congressmen say, are satisfied with the way the new law is affecting Georgia crops and they are trying to devise ways and means of bringing about a greater degree of relief through daily negotiations with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and his farm experts.

Representative Eugene E. Cox, of Camilla, who cast a negative vote on the wage-hour bill in the committee on rules, of which he is a high-ranking member, is greatly concerned over the effect on his farmers, especially tobacco and peanut growers, of rules and regulations proclaimed under the 1938 farm control act.

Act Proves Judge Cox already Headache has advised agricultural officials here that "administration of the act is proving to be a very painful headache to everybody." He cited the following examples to prove his point.

"I know of one instance," he declared, "where a gentleman has heretofore cultivated 190 acres. An allotment was made to him of cotton and tobacco, which are the only money crops he is permitted to grow, that with normal production and based on anticipated prices would yield a return sufficient to provide five cents per day for each of the 26 workers on the farm."

"In another instance, an old gentleman who has been a tenant all his life and who has a family of 10, all still with him, none married off, has for a number of years been growing on an average of five acres of tobacco a year. Through sacrifice and saving and doing outside work where it could be obtained, he saved up enough money to buy one of the government farms the government had been compelled to take over in satisfaction of a loan it had made. This year he took charge of the farm and began preparing his land. He laid out a plot of nine acres which he planted to tobacco. When the county agent came around to make allotments, instead of giving him nine or eight or seven acres in tobacco he allotted him seven-tenths of one acre. What is there in the law that promises relief to people who fall within that class?"

Subsidy Another Georgia Cash Due congressman, however, is found a ray of light for farmers of the state.

Representative Emmett M. Owen, of Griffin, majority member of the house committee on agriculture, has just learned from Secretary Wallace that "within a very few days" all subsidy payments to Georgia farmers for 1937 under the soil conservation act will have been mailed out.

Mr. Owen was officially advised over the week end that department field agents had been "told" of subsidy checks, more than 1,000 a day now being put in the mails.

"I am confident after talks with department officials," Mr. Owen declared, "that the mailing of these checks is being hurried as rapidly as is humanly possible."

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

DE AMICITIA.

Judge Marcus W. Beck is the dean of the Ten Club, and since April was the month for Dr. J. R. McCain to entertain the club, he thought of the happy idea of having the dinner served at Judge Beck's beautiful home on Stratford Road on his birthday—last Thursday.

It was one of those rare occasions which one treasures up in his heart. We assembled, one by one, as if to pay our respects of his birthday, until the club was present, seated about the distinguished jurist on the porch of his home, and there in the yard the table was set and after a remarkable paper by Judge Samuel H. Sibley on the Far East, we dined to eat with Judge and Mrs. Beck, under the majestic trees, at sunset.

"My friends, my dear friends," said Judge Beck as he sat and looked about him. "You can never know what this means to me. You have come away from your work, away from your homes, to be with us on this happy occasion. As the years pass, we come to understand and appreciate friendship. If man has one friend, he is fortunate; if he has two friends, he is rich; if he has three friends, he is opulent; if he has four friends, well, God bless you each and help me to be worthy of your love."

And there beside Judge Beck sat Mell R. Wilkinson, who, on another Ten Club occasion had said of Fred Paxon, "As our friend

ARTICLE 5.

VIENNA, Austria—(By Mail.)
Adding to Vienna I left England and crossed the channel to Ostend and through Belgium to the frontier at Aachen. From there the long trip begins across Germany and most of Austria to the city on the Danube.

It was a long ride and I went first class in the cars with polished planking for seats. To ride them for 29 consecutive hours was an experience both physical and mental.

It was something of a coincident that there was an Atlanta friend riding with me. Before leaving Atlanta a friend there had been good enough to give me a letter to a friend of his in London. In London I had met two refugees from Vienna at this man's home. They had escaped across the border. They had asked me to bring them, from whom they did not hear, and to bring back, possible, some of their effects.

I may say, I was able to do it. The ride was made in a train filled with Germans and Austrians going back to vote. For free mortal hours after leaving Aachen at the Belgian border, I slept in the corridor of the train.

Cologne I got a seat in one of the coupe compartments which had eight people. Some of that and some of the trip back—will be the basis of a subsequent article.

All the way up we saw the decorations. It was an order. Even those who did not have a voice in the country had to decorate. Every hamlet tried to outdo the other.
I was going ahead of the picnics and we could see workmen working. Each railroad station had big "Ja" signs. There were hundreds saying:

"Your Fuehrer Your 'Yes.'"
"Thank the Fuehrer With 'Yes.'" "Bread and Work Comes with the Fuehrer."
"One People, One Reich, One Fuehrer."
"Blood Calls to Blood."

Am 10. April:

Ja!

Numerous posters and placards (such as the above) appeared throughout Austria prior to the April 10 plebiscite in which Austrians were urged to vote yes on union with Germany.

made with garlands and flowers.
The Nazis are a cruel people.
Most of them are young. The army is made up of young men. The Hitler youth leaders take up most of the time of the children. They have little time at home in hours after school. Each Sunday and Saturday afternoon they must be marching about, singing about Hitler and Germany.

The first day in Vienna I went to a law office, a large one. There I found the partner of the man who had fled to London because he had been one of the leading supporters of the Schuschnigg government. The fugitive had led a public life. He had been decorated by the old royal government and by the republic. The partners were engaged in legiti-mate practice of law and represented many English firms. They and their ancestors and their ancestors before them had lived in Vienna as decent, valuable, honorable citizens. They were Jews.

Then came the Nazis.

There were tears in the eyes of the partner when I came in and sat down to talk with him.
"It makes us feel good," he said,
"to have a visitor. It makes us feel there is, after all, a little lib-

McGILL BRINGS MEMORIZED MESSAGE
I brought him a memorized message about the location of certain papers which were to be burned lest they fall into Nazi hands. I brought another message about getting things out of his house and into my possession.

"I cannot go on the streets except early in the morning and late," he said, "without being subjected to the chance of being arrested and made to sweep streets or polish automobiles. You go to tea at 4 o'clock."

It was the address of the mother of the man who had escaped.

Children's School Song Glorifies Torture of Jews at Stake.

She, being near 80 years of age, refused to leave Austria, saying it was her home and that she wanted to die there.

I went. There were present the old woman, an old servant who was loyal to other people.
The old mother spoke five languages, including English. One of the others spoke English.

There she sat in her comfortable home. The Nazis had come.
They had pulled her out of bed and demanded to know where her son had gone. They had pillaged the place and what they did not take they had sealed and forbidden her to use.

HOSTESS FORBIDDEN TO USE GOOD SERVICE

"I am sorry," she said, as we had tea, "I cannot let you have tea from a good service. The Nazis have said I cannot use it."

"Nothing may be taken from the house," said another. "Even a small package will be noticed by the neighbors, some of whom are paid to watch. The beautiful old painting of them all confiscated. All is lost. This old woman must leave. She has no relatives. She would not go with her son because she would not believe it could happen. Now, I doubt if they will let her go."

I sat there in the house, with the lights on because the curtains were drawn, and tried to believe that this was the world of 1938—that it was not a dream. But it was the truth. I had read and heard the Nazi's very effective propaganda that such things are not true. I was seeing them.

The next day I went to tea at the home of another family. The husband was a cultured man, a lawyer and a patron of the arts and music. He had served with distinction in the World War.

"Europe is mad," he said. "I cannot leave but I want my children to leave. My wife and I will remain. We must. I served in the war for Austria. I was an Austrian citizen. I fought in the trenches. I stayed through it all.
So, they tell me, I can keep my office. But I may not have any business with Christian firms in this or in any other countries. A Jew can have no business. So there is no work for me. It is an ironic gesture, that law. Thousands of clerks, turned out of stores, have nothing to eat. They have nothing at all. We may manage to live, I do not see how they will live."

I looked at his two attractive children, a girl of 20 and a boy of 16. They both spoke English and French and German. They will leave their parents, if it is possible to find a place for them in some other country. It was, seeing it and being in it, impossible to believe.

NAZIS REARING
A TERRIBLE RACE
The Nazis are bringing up a terrible, an awful race. There may be some justice in it, after all.
They are bringing up their children entirely devoid of any of the qualities which differentiate man from the beast.

At the tea was a woman who was a Christian and whose husband was a Jew. The couple had lived together happily for 15 years. Suddenly, they were told they must be divorced if she expected to be recognized as a citizen of the Reich. She refused.

"My child came home from school today," she said, "and he sang for me a song for me. He is nine and so he did not know what it meant. It is one of the Nazis teaching. Would you like to hear it?"

CHILDREN'S SONG
GLORIFIES TORTURE
I nodded. She sang it in German and I quote only the first three lines with their translation:

Wie schön ist Eisen, Wie schön ist der Jud am harterphal.

It means:
"How beautiful is iron,
"How beautiful is steel
"How beautiful is a Jew at a stake of torture."

While the mothers of most nations are trying to teach their children, with the aid of their teachers, that birds and animals are to be treated kindly; that kindness to one's fellow playmate is an attribute to be desired; that decency is good, that bloodletting and cruelty are attributes of twisted minds and of animals who cannot think—what happens in Germany and now in Austria?

The children in Germany have been taught for years that blood and iron and steel are glorious things. They are being taught that torture and burning at the stake are fine things for people who have been set aside as enemies of the state. They are being taught to inflict tortures, mental and physical, on some of their playmates. They are making miserable the lives of other children.

LONG AND TERRIBLE JUSTICE IN THIS

There may be, as I have said, a long and terrible justice in this.
Because if the Germans persist they will bring up a race which is so terrible and so depraved it cannot do other than produce its own destruction. An aroused world will, even though it does not want war, be forced to go to war.

When you hear talk in America of Fascism, think if you want your own children to be taught to glorify blood and killing and torture and hate instead of the decent things in life.

I talked with many people. One was a German. He was not a Jew. He had left Germany because he did not care for the Fascist government. He had taught in England. He had gone to Vienna as a professor at the University of Vienna. If I should mention his name it would be known to many readers. His books are known to most of the people in the world who study politics and government.

"I was ordered to sweep the

Character Building and Training Are Urged for Youth by Dr. Turner

Constitution's Story Telling of Emotions and Outlooks for Two Boys in Jail on Murder Charges Cited as Need for Aiding Youngsters.

Dr. Herman L. Turner, president of the Community Chest and a member of the central committee for Youth Week, yesterday said the purpose of the week was
"to turn the spotlight on young people and their needs."

"The remarkable story which appeared in Sunday's Constitution telling of the emotions and out-looks of two young boys in jail on murder charges brings to a focus the very things we are trying to accomplish in the agencies whose work is being shown this week," he said.

Dr. Turner referred to the story about Sam J. Wheat Jr., 19-year-old "traveler" of Lithia Springs, sentenced to the electric chair for the murder of W. W. Cape Sr., elderly Austell grocer, and Louis Harry, 16, branded as the "bad boy of Orchard Hill," who is in Spalding county jail charged with the rock-slaying of a youthful hitch-hiker.

"These agencies seek to prevent such things from happening by building character, giving guidance to boys and girls, instilling spiritual ideals and a sense of responsibility that makes good citizens," said Dr. Turner.

"The organized agencies in Atlanta serving boys and girls are performing a great work in preventing crime and building a better citizenship for the years ahead.
We sincerely hope to bring about a better understanding of this fact during Youth Week."

How Atlanta guards the health of her boys and girls and helps them develop strong bodies and sound minds will be demonstrated today as one of the features of the week.

FINAL RITES HELD FOR JOHN BEASLEY

General Manager of Cemetery Association Buried in West View.

Final rites for John Myrick Beasley, 59, general manager of the West View Cemetery Association, who died late Saturday in a private hospital, were held yesterday afternoon at Spring Hill, conducted by Dr. John Moore Walker, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church.

Born in Opelika, Ala., Mr. Beasley was a graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He came to Atlanta in 1900 and became connected with the Adair Realty Company and in 1924 he was sent to Sarasota, Fla., to become manager of Whitfield Estates.

Returning to Atlanta in 1929 as manager of the West View Cemetery Association. He lived at 259 Fourteenth street, N. E. Burial was in West View cemetery.

FINAL SERVICES HELD FOR MRS. G. C. INGRAM

Funeral services for Mrs. G. C. Ingram, 68, widow of the Rev. G. C. Ingram, for many years a member of the South Georgia Methodist conference, who died Saturday in a private hospital, were held yesterday afternoon in the Woodland (Ga.) Methodist church, conducted by the Rev. C. C. Clift. Born in Summerville, Ga., Mrs. Ingram had made her home with her daughters, Misses Ruth and Leona Ingram, teachers of the Atlanta public school system, at 926 Greenwood avenue, N. E., since the death of her husband. Burial was in the churchyard.

Socialist Considers Criminal Action Following His 'Deportation.'

COLD SPRING HARBOR, N. J., May 1.—(AP)—Norman Thomas, veteran Socialist candidate for the presidency, said today he was studying the question of criminal action in retaliation for his "deportation" from Jersey City, N. J., last night.

He and Mrs. Thomas were a home in their rambling Long Island farmhouse, recuperating from last night's experiences. Thomas said he had not been injured by the policemen who prevented him from speaking in a May Day rally. Thomas said that as the result of his being taken by police in a car from the center of Jersey City to a Manhattan-bound ferryboat, he had written a letter to J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, asking whether the Jersey City police were not guilty of kidnapping.

Thomas said he also had written a letter to President Roosevelt as head of the Democratic party and to all members of the Democratic national committee.

LONDON SCORES ATTACK ON THOMAS IN JERSEY

TOPEKA, Kan., May 1.—(AP)—Alf M. Landon, 1936 presidential nominee, said today he considered the treatment given a party of Socialist party in Jersey City last night "gross violation of our sacred right of free speech."

In a letter to Thomas, Landon wrote, "I am shocked at your treatment in Jersey City and at such a gross violation of our sacred right of free speech."

Nurses to Attend Legion Festival—Just for Fun of It

A group of about a hundred young men and women, nurses from the Baptist hospital and from the city, will form a party attending the Atlanta Legion post No. 1 spring festival at Lakewood tonight. Arrangements for the special party were made by officials of Royal American Show and Mike Benton, president of the Southeastern Fair.

Fair weather Sunday played an important part in bringing out large crowds throughout the afternoon and night. The engagement is the second of the season for the carnival which has headquarters in Tampa, Fla. From Atlanta they go to Memphis to furnish attraction for the Cotton Carnival opening May 9. A little later they move into Canada, visiting Winnipeg and other large Canadian fairs, including the famed Calgary Stampede.

Who Shot Cock Robin? A La 1938

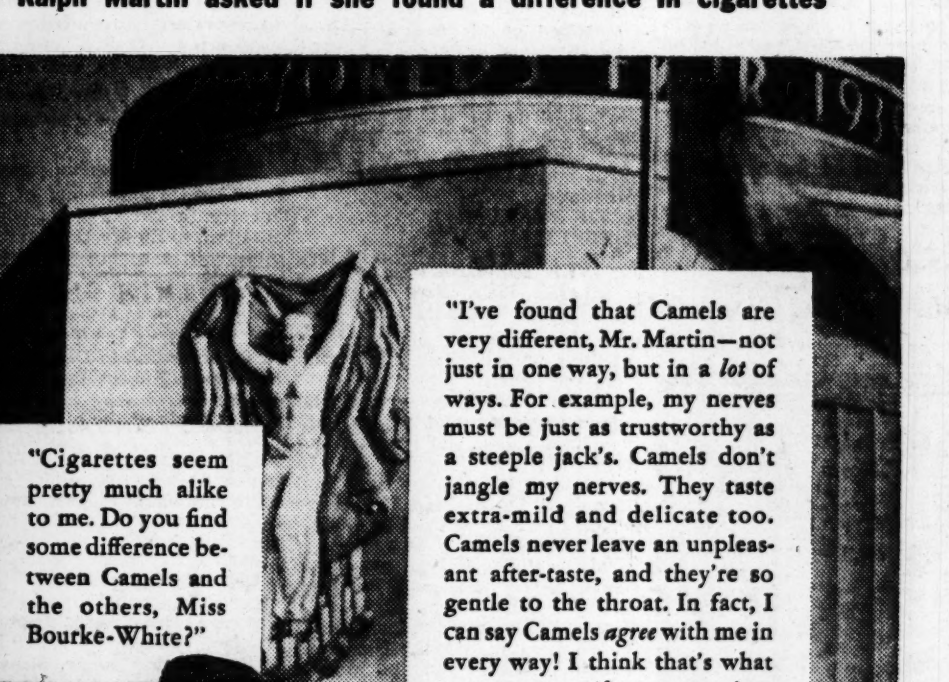

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—The only way Harold Rush, 34, could figure it out today was this—a bullet crawled up his coat sleeve and bit him. Walking on the fringe of "Hell's Kitchen," on the West Side, Rush noticed blood running down his right wrist. That was the first he knew, he said, about being wounded. At the hospital, it was discovered that the wound had been inflicted by a bullet. But—Rush heard no shot. He felt no pain. And there was no bullet hole in his coat or shirt sleeve.

On April 27, 1938, The Application Atlanta Wine & Liquor Co., Inc., filed with the Mayor and Council of the City of Atlanta, Georgia, to engage in the sale of spirituous, malt and vinous liquors at retail, in said city at 240 Avenue A, N. SHE COMBS THE WORLD FOR PICTURES THAT THRILL

What Margaret Bourke-White, famous photographer, said when Ralph Martin asked if she found a difference in cigarettes

"I've found that Camels are very different, Mr. Martin—not just in one way, but in a lot of ways. For example, my nerves must be just as trustworthy as a steeple jack's. Camels don't jangle my nerves. They taste extra-mild and delicate too. Camels never leave an unpleasant after-taste, and they're so gentle to the throat. In fact, I can say Camels agree with me in every way! I think that's what counts most—how your cigarette agrees with you!"

STEEL MILLS, lumber camps, dams, skyscrapers, coal mines, subways (as above)—appeal to Margaret Bourke-White. She has gone all over the United States, into far countries. And her photographs are now internationally famous for their vigor and sensational interest. They're different! And that's the same remark that Miss Bourke-White made about Camels to Ralph Martin at the New York World's Fair grounds (right).

PETITION IS STARTED TO COMPEL ACTION ON WAGE-HOUR BILL

CIO's League Announces 22 Congressmen Have Signed Statement.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Labor's Non-Paran League, political wing of John L. Lewis' CIO, began a final effort today to force a house vote on the wage-hour bill at this session, but some congressional leaders said privately the attempt appeared hopeless.

The League announced 22 democratic representatives from Pennsylvania had signed a statement demanding the labor standard measure "be given the immediate attention of this congress."

Start of Petition.
This, the League said, was the inception of a movement to take a bill by a petition out of the hands of the house rules committee, which last week refused to get it out of the committee. Leaders pointed out that such a petition requires 218 signatures and considerable time to become effective. They said strong sentiment for an early adjournment had doubtful success of such a course.

The Pennsylvania's statement said that high minimum wages and a shorter work week were absolutely necessary at this time, a major catastrophe is to be averted.

"Inevitable Wage Cuts."
Representative Mary T. Norton, Democrat, New Jersey, chairman of the house labor committee, which approved the wage-hour bill, expressed similar sentiment in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee. Mrs. Norton said that with the sharp business decline in the last few months "have come the inevitable wage cuts."

The question of an annual wage so came in for discussion today, the Democratic Digest said Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt had made his statement:

"I think that annual wages for workers in industry are very desirable as at present high hourly wages do not as a rule mean an adequate income to workers, particularly in seasonal employment."

OLD EIRE CLANSMEN TO HOLD LAST RITES

Annual Burial Services Are Set for Today.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 1.—(AP)—The clansmen of Old Eire—500 of them—gathered here today for their annual burial service.

Tomorrow they will assemble at a cemetery, following services at St. Patrick's cathedral, to bury six of the number who died last May 1. Usually the services are held on May 1, but since that date this year came on Sunday, the burial was set for the next day.

Thomas Simon Costello, despite his 91 years, was among those clansmen bivouacked outside the city limits tonight while most others advanced in years were in downtown hotels.

Hoover Values Third Party As Wedge To Return G.O.P.

Ex-President Says Republicans Solid, Democrats Divided.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 1.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover, in a between-trains interview, said today Governor Philip La Follette's proposed third party may be the wedge for returning the Republican party to power.

The former president is en route to Oklahoma City and Chicago.

"If the Republicans continue to stand together as they have recently, and the liberal and conservative Democrats continue to widen the breach between them as they have recently, we should be able to regain leadership," he said.

Hoover said he planned to speak at Oklahoma's "grass root" convention May 5 on "The Dangerous Road for Democracy," a topic based on his recent trip to Europe.

OLD PARTIES ALIKE.
SENATOR LA FOLLETTE SAYS
(Copyright, 1935, by United Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 1.—(UP)—Senator Robert M. La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin, said tonight in the Wisconsin legislature that the new third party, the National Progressive America, by his brother, Governor Philip La Follette, of Wisconsin, was forced by failure of the two major parties to fulfill campaign pledges.

"I doubt," he said, "if there are any who belong to the old parties who are willing to assert, without qualification, what kind of Democrats and Republicans they are. There are no clear cut issues between them now and there have been none since 1932 except on questions of presidential candidates."

The youthful senator, son of the late Robert M. (Fighting Bob) La Follette, who led the largest third party movement in the nation's history in 1924, said the national policies of the two old parties, together with factional fights which have divided them, have placed the country at the most critical political crossroads since the Civil War.

LA FOLLETTE PLANS CAMPAIGN IN IOWA
CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, May 1.—(AP)—Governor Philip La Follette, of Wisconsin, today said he expects personally to campaign in Iowa this year for National Progressive party congressional and state ticket candidates.

The governor returned to Madison, Wis., today after two days of speeches and conferences with liberal leaders on the question of organizing his new-born national party in the tall corn state.

DEFENSE BLAMES SIMONE'S ENGLISH

Parisian Actress Will Take Stand Today Against Ex-Secretary.

HOLLYWOOD, May 1.—(UP)—Simone Simon, petite Parisian film actress, will be recalled to the witness stand in superior court tomorrow to conclude testimony against a former secretary, who is charged with appropriating $20,000 from the actress' bank account.

The state contends the secretary, Sandra Martin, 32, bought frocks, coats and jewels with the money after forging Miss Simon's power of attorney. Defense attorneys will cross-examine the actress on the theory the money was withdrawn because of a misunderstanding, claiming Miss Simon's knowledge of English was faulty.

The actress testified in a long session last Friday that she went to Europe last June for three months, and that when she returned her bank account had "shrunk." She said she had not authorized Miss Martin to purchase anything.

She also said that her knowledge of the language was good, and that she had studied English for four years in Paris.

U. S. C. OF C. PARLEY
Public Spending Scheduled for Discussion.
WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Officers of the United States Chamber of Commerce estimated tonight that about 2,500 delegates would be present tomorrow for the opening of the chamber's 26th annual meeting.

They will represent nearly 1,000,000 businessmen in drafting a business recovery program.

Taxes, public spending, unemployment and labor relations are major subjects to be discussed.

SOLON ACCUSES F. D. R. OF AIDING COMMUNISTS

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, charged tonight the Roosevelt administration had encouraged the development of a Communist dictatorship in Mexico and had invited wholesale confiscation of American property all over the world.

In a statement to the press, he criticized this government's acknowledgment that Mexico had a right to seize American-owned oil properties provided the owners were compensated on a basis of original investment less depreciation.

JAPANESE OCCUPY AMERICAN AREA

Soldiers With Bayonets Hunt Chinese Terrorists in Settlement.

SHANGHAI, May 1.—(UP)—Japanese soldiers with bared bayonets occupied a large section in the heart of the Anglo-American area of the International Settlement tonight after Chinese terrorists had thrown a grenade at a Japanese military truck and wounded nine persons.

Hundreds of Chinese were searched and many arrested. The Japanese retained control of the area until 11 p. m.

It was the second armed mass occupation of foreign districts of the Settlement within 24 hours and aroused British and American residents who long have feared the Japanese planned to assume absolute control of all the Settlement.

Hundreds of Japanese soldiers in motor trucks arrived within a few minutes after the explosion at 3 p. m. and blocked off large areas around Nanking road near the big race course and recreation grounds opposite the Y. M. C. A.

The explosion was near the spot where Chinese bombed a Japanese "victory parade" last December following the Japanese occupation of Nanking.

Injured Are Chinese.
All the injured were Chinese. Japanese in the trucks were not hurt and the truck was damaged only slightly.

Japanese soldiers with pistols in hand searched all the buildings over an area of more than a dozen blocks, including department stores and hotels. Chinese were handed and roughly treated to hold their hands in the air while Japanese searched for arms.

Municipal police aided the Japanese in the search for the bombers.

Japanese riflemen patrolled the streets but did not molest Americans or other occidentals. They also kept out of the defense areas assigned to United States marines and British forces.

Other developments:
A Japanese spokesman announced that Japanese airplanes bombed the city of Hankow, China, over an irregular line nearly 2,000 miles long on Saturday and damaged airdromes, railways and munitions dumps.

One fleet bombed 40 points on the Canton railway, vital link in China's communications line to Hankow.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's provisional capital and "blew up several cars south of Ying Tak station. The railway was put out of commission for a time."

A second fleet conducted mass bombing operations on Kweichow, one of the key cities in China's great inland railway line.

Japanese forces are now approaching to Hankow.

Woman Who Saw Battle of Atlanta From Window Dies in 81st Year

Mrs. Mary Virginia Warlick Later Watched as Her Mortally-Wounded Father Was Brought Back to House; Was in First Class at Girls' High.

Mrs. Mary Virginia Warlick, who, as a wide-eyed child of five, watched the smoke and fire of the Battle of Atlanta from a window of her home and later saw her mortally-wounded father brought back into the house, died early yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Warlick was 80 years old and lived at 2299 Cottage Grove avenue with her two sons, Judson and Bartow A. Warlick.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James E. McFall, and lived on Exeter street when her father fought to resist the advance of Sherman's forces during the War Between the States.

Although she was only slightly more than five years old at the time of the Battle of Atlanta, Mrs. Warlick vividly recalled details of the days when the city was under fire.

She often recalled watching the raging battle and of seeing her father and cane knives, smashed the offices of the company at Frome and looted it of money. The manager was forced to flee into the bush, pursued by rioters. Local police were unable to handle the situation and militia was called from Kingston.

'FLOOD CARBURETOR,' BYRD SAYS OF PRIMING

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, compared President Roosevelt's proposed $50,000,000,000 spending program today to a gasoline-flooded automobile.

"When an automobile is primed too much, gasoline is wasted and the machine will not run," he said. "It occurs to me that we have choked recovery by too much priming already."

Perfumes are usually about four times as strong as toilet water.

Public Confidence Necessary, Says Cameron.
DETROIT, May 1.—(AP)—William J. Cameron, of the Ford Motor Company, who joined Henry Ford in a White House conference with President Roosevelt last week, said in a radio address to the public that "government's best service to economic life is to preserve a state of national tranquillity in which public confidence flourishes."

"What begins as a business depression," Cameron said, "ends as a political depression, and for a political depression there is no economic remedy. The cure is withdrawal of the cause by the return of political authority to its natural and proper state."

BANKS ASKED TO AID 'EASING' OF CREDIT

Chairman Perkins Urges Support in RFC Lending Campaign.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—James H. Perkins, New York banker, called upon the banks of the country tonight to assist the RFC "in every way possible" in its campaign to supply easier credit to business.

The chairman of the board of the National City Bank made the suggestion in a radio discussion with RFC Chairman Jesse H. Jones. The RFC recently resumed lending to business and political subdivisions.

Jones asked the banks to forward the RFC all legitimate applications for loans which could not be fulfilled by the private lending agencies.

"Every business, however small, that is being honestly conducted is entitled to some line of credit," Jones declared.

Perkins said the banks could help the RFC by doing "preliminary spare work" on applications before they reach the federal agency.

"There are two reasons why the banks should co-operate with Mr. Jones," Perkins asserted. "The first is that every effort that can be made to help the business situation should be made. The second is that to no instrumentality of the government or to no individual associated with the government are the banks more indebted than they are to the RFC and its chairman, Jesse Jones."

The RFC, Jones declared, had approved loans of approximately $17,000,000 to business and industry since President Roosevelt authorized resumption of such lending on February 18.

As Supply Speaks

SPRINGFIELD, Vt., May 1.—(AP)—Some of his congregation objected but the Rev. Lawrence Larowe, young Methodist minister, today observed the opening of the trout season by leaving a supply minister in his place—and catching eight fish.

Then he attended services at the Brownsville church and later remarked:

"When I look back over the day, I feel that I have spent a Christian Sunday."

The young Springfield clergyman announced his plans last week. Some members of the congregation protested to Rev. Eldon Martin, of St. Johnsbury, state conference head. He wrote to the Rev. Mr. Larowe, suggesting that the trip be deferred.

REBELS ISOLATE LOYALIST FIGHTERS, STRENGTHEN LINES

Unheralded Movement Strengthens Position for Drive to Sea.

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Frontier), May 1.—(AP)—The central insurgent army, defying storms which halted virtually all military action in Spain, drove northeast of Teruel today to join a northern column and isolate a government advance force.

The unheralded movement, which closed a 20-mile line between Aliaga and Molinos, came while a ghost-like silence fell over other fronts where both sides quit fighting in the rain to hold May day celebrations.

The insurgents drove northeast along the Guadalquivir river to complete the drive, surrounding government fighters holding out in the Montalban-Aliaga-Molinos triangle, about 50 miles northeast of Teruel.

The maneuver strengthened insurgent positions for their push towards the Mediterranean in support of a salient already thrust to the coast northeast of Vinaroz.

Elsewhere on the eastern front, torrential rains which turned trenches into rivulets, forced both sides to abandon lines and take up positions in the hills.

Artillery was at a standstill, food and munitions trucks slipped and slogged over slick roads. Three feet of snow fell in the Pyrenees.

Fasting Dean Noe Preaches First Sermon Since Collapse

There's No Resurrection Without Crucifixion, He Declares.

BEAUFORT, N. C., May 1.—(AP)—Hale and hearty, and tipping the scales now at 170 pounds, the Very Rev. Israel Noe, the former fasting dean of St. Mary's Cathedral, Memphis, Tenn., preached his first sermon today since January 22, five days before his collapse.

He spoke in the small, crowded St. Paul's Episcopal church, where he was baptized early in life and was later confirmed, to a congregation that included his mother, Mrs. Susannah Catherine Noe, whom he is visiting here.

Was 106 Pounds.
The cleric showed no evidence of his long fasting, which at one time reduced his weight to 106 pounds. Noe took as his text, "But He, Whom God Raised Again, Saw No Corruption." Acts 13:37, and preached for exactly 19 minutes.

"God is the creative principle of every man's life and Easter Day begins when God is allowed to break through the sepulchre of our hard and selfish ways, and to become resurrected into a new expression of life," he said.

"Easter Day begins when the stone of self is rolled away and the Christ within is allowed to rise—when we cast aside the manner of living and thinking and take up a new way of life."

"There can be no resurrection without a crucifixion. It is only by the way of a crucifixion of the flesh that we can find a release of the spirit."

Later, he said:
"What the world needs today is a living demonstration of what real religion is. We need to rip aside every pretense of unreality and to give to the world a life so real and true that man can look into our faces and see that we have been with Jesus."

PICKS COURT GOWN

Mrs. Kennedy Choose White Lace To Meet Royalty.

PARIS, May 1.—(UP)—Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, wife of the United States ambassador to Britain, has chosen a white lace court dress from Molyneux for presentation before the British king and queen on May 12 and 25.

The gown is embroidered with rhinestones and ornamented with gold and silver sequins. It has a court train of silver lame bordered with sequin bands.

Lace will be the order of the day at courts this year.

1,298 GEORGIANS PLACED ON JOBS

More Than Half in Private Employment.

State Director Marion A. O'Connor announced yesterday the Georgia State Employment Service, with the National Re-employment Service, found jobs for 1,298 Georgians during the past week.

More than half the total were in private employment. The Georgia State Employment Service placed 559 persons, 333 on jobs in private employment and 266 on public works jobs; the National Re-employment Service placed 699 persons, 285 on jobs in private employment and 414 on public works jobs.

The Rome district led in placements made in private industry with 104; the Macon district was next with 86.

The public employment offices registered 2,059 unemployed during the week.

FORMER SHERIFF SLAIN AT ALABAMA MINE

JASPER, Ala., May 1.—(AP)—Tom Chambliss, 52, former sheriff of Fayette county, was shot and killed today at a coal mine near here.

Two peace officers were placed in jail, Deputy Sheriff Hinton, of Walker county, said, on murder warrant sworn out by a son of the slain man. Hinton said cause of the shooting had not been determined.

HITLER PROCLAIMS GENERAL AMNESTY

Petty Culprits and Over- zealous Nazis Freed by Celebration Decree.

BERLIN, May 1.—(AP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler proclaimed a general amnesty today for persons charged with minor common offenses committed before today.

The proclamation was issued to commemorate Austrian-German union, effected March 13.

A new law, effective January 1, 1939, also was enacted "for the protection of youth."

It regulated child labor, barring persons under the age of 16, with few exceptions, from all night work, overtime, and from being kept at work between 2 p. m. on Sundays and 6 a. m. on Mondays.

Time spent in attending professional classes will count as work time and the youngsters will be entitled to 16 days of vacation annually. The latter provision will come into operation this summer.

The amnesty covers ordinary offenses which do not involve imprisonment for more than one month or fines levied as an alternative.

For political offenses it covered crimes which do not involve more than six months' imprisonment. A special section absolved from punishment any acts committed "in excess of zeal for the National Socialist cause."

The amnesty proclamation allowed no leniency in cases of high treason or those where "particularly base motives" were apparent.

Yesterday Hitler proclaimed amnesty for Nazi party members charged with party offenses committed prior to April 10.

FLORIDA EXPECTS RECORD BALLOT

Estimate of Votes Range Up to 450,000.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 1.—(AP)—Registration lists, closing last midnight, indicate an unprecedented tide of ballots in Florida's primary next Tuesday where the five-man Democratic senatorial contest holds the national spotlight because it is considered by many to be the first proving ground this year of New Deal popularity.

Voters crowded registration offices in many counties until the deadline to qualify for the balloting. Estimates of the expected vote range upward to 450,000, compared with Florida's previous record of 328,000 in 1936.

WIFE QUITS HIM, HE TAKES POISON

Husband Yells 'Plight Friend on Street'

Bill Ayers, 28, of 218 Baker street, N. W., was admitted to Grady hospital in serious condition early last night, suffering from effects of a poison dose, according to police reports.

J. R. Harrison, 29, of 915 Moreland avenue, N. E., a friend of Ayers, told police he was passing the apartment house when Ayers yelled at him from a window crying out, "I've done something. I shouldn't have done."

Harrison ran into the Ayers apartment and called Mrs. Nancy Sanders, Ayers' mother-in-law. An ambulance was summoned and Ayers was taken to the hospital.

His wife, Mrs. Katherine Ayers, told Radio Patrolmen H. M. Sumner and S. C. Dillingham morning because he'd been drinking heavily.

COOGAN DISPUTE IS SENT TO COURT

Ex Suit Star's Accounting Sent Up for Pleas.

HOLLYWOOD, May 1.—(UP)—Hostilities between Jackie Coogan and his mother and step-father, which have been in the courts for some time, were transferred to court tomorrow after two weeks of preliminary jockeying and oratory.

The scene of battle will shift to the tower courtroom of Judge Wiley, where attorneys for the principals will argue motion growing out of Coogan's suit for an accounting of the dwindling fortune against Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bernstein.

Fearful the estate has shrunk to a quarter-million dollars, counsel for the former child star will press for an expert accounting to determine the fate of his screen earnings which he believes totaled $2,276,240.

Art, 193 Peachtree.

Bon-Art Studios, Inc., located at 193 Peachtree street, announces to the holders of expired Bon-Art certificates that these expired certificates will be accepted at the studio at face value up to, and including, Saturday, May 7.

Realizing that the plan to give photograph for Mother's Day is fast becoming the nation's Number one gift, this generous offer is made at this time to allow the holders of expired certificates to come in and have their pictures made in time for Mother's Day.

The studio has large, spacious quarters, beautifully designed and arranged, occupying 7,000 square feet of space. It has two large modernly equipped camera rooms, waiting rooms have been so arranged that every precaution is taken to avoid tedious and unpleasant waiting on the part of the patrons.

With its modern equipment and arrangements, the studios attempt to make the process of having a picture taken a very pleasant and delightful one. The studios offer the public a well-rounded variety in photography. Numbered among the studio's most popular features are the exquisite gold and silver matographed portraits, of their latest developments, jewelry miniatures made on porcelain, opal, ivory and koto are a special feature of the Bon-Art studios.

The studio organization, now more than at any time in the past, stands ready to fill high school, college and university portraits. The contracts receive the same excellent service and high-grade workmanship that has become synonymous with the name of Bon-Art Studios.

The personnel of the studios consists of photographers who are highly skilled and have a thorough knowledge in the art of posing, draping and lighting. Receptionists are chosen on a basis of personality, ability to meet the public, and a thorough knowledge of their work.

Every person having a photograph taken receives a number of uses from which to make their selections.

The studio also carries a wide and complete stock of frames especially designed to reflect the beauty and charm of their pictures.

Bon-Art Studios, Inc., at all times, stands ready to give you the finest work in photography.

WL PLUNGES BIG CITY INTO TOTAL DARKNESS

SALT LAKE CITY, May 1.—(AP)—An owl flew into the main works of the power system last night, put the city in total darkness for four minutes, and came out alive but badly hurt.

"He looked like he was ready for cooking," said Superintendent B. Fuller. He didn't have a feather left on him. He merely looked the "buss rack," was stunned and we caught him."

TIRES ARE RISKY IF WORN SMOOTH

John Holland, Distributor of Kelly-Springfields, Warns of Danger.

"If your tires are smooth—they're getting risky," is the very sound and logical statement of John H. Holland, of the Holland Tire Co., at 28-30 Ivy St., in the Ivy Street Garage building. A nd then Mr. Holland, who has been selling exclusively Kelly-Springfields at his place for 12 years, goes on to say "that it doesn't pay to slip, slide or worry along with thin, smooth treads, especially when you can usually trade them in for all they're worth."

Nothing adds more to the perfect enjoyment of the motorist than to know that he is gliding along the beautiful countryside, secure in the knowledge that his tires are absolutely okay and dependable.

"The absolute dependability of Kelly-Springfields relieves the motorist of all worry over possible tire failure on any trip," stated Mr. Holland. "The overbalanced construction of the tires, with full flexibility from bead to bead, actually adds to riding comfort in a measure that is especially noticeable when you leave the paved highway."

The construction which contributes to easier riding also has an important value in easing jolts and strains on the mechanism of a car, he pointed out, and the bigger, deeper, thicker non-skid tread of the Kelly-Springfield gives longer wear and longer and more complete non-skid protection in all kinds of weather.

Another feature with the Holland Tire Company, says Mr. Holland, is that Kelly-Springfields can be purchased on the easy payment plan. Motorists can pay as they ride if they take advantage of the club plan the company has inaugurated. This makes it easy to keep the car in safe and easy-riding condition.

The Holland company, besides its new tire service, maintains one of the most complete tire rebuilding departments in this section, and a repair and vulcanizing department, both manned by expert tire men who have achieved more than local reputation for the quality of their work.

In the retreading department old tires with sound carcasses are completely rebuilt with new non-skid treads of high quality live rubber to give additional mileage comparable to the mileage of a new tire.

HIGH COURT DECISION ON STRIKES EXPECTED

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—The supreme court, whose recent criticism of a governmental "short-cut" has led the National Labor Board to reopen some of its major cases for further hearings, may rule directly tomorrow on a vital point of labor board policy.

The question before the court is whether workers who go on strike voluntarily sever their employment and hence are not entitled to the protection of the Wagner labor relations act.

Meet Blistering Hot Weather
In the Shade of Pretty Awnings

That home and business house awnings are growing more and more in favor, even to the point where architects have been including them in their plans for some time, is evidenced by the busy plant of the Atlanta Tent and Awning Company, with factory and offices located at East Point. Literally a hundred or more new and attractive patterns and fabrics for making awnings are available, with trained service staff and expert designers ready to consult with patrons in order to choose the exact style and design to harmonize best with any particular type of building or color scheme.

The Atlanta Tent and Awning Company has been founded for more than 40 years, and has made gratifying strides with the growth and development of the entire southeast—in fact, its business today is national in scope, the company having thousands of satisfied customers throughout the United States.

As the summer season is fast approaching, there is no more suitable time for the selection of attractive awnings than the present. J. D. Couch, manager of the awning department, says:

"Purchase of new awnings now means longer use for them and really better value for the money invested. Delay will mean simply the inconvenience and discomfort that will be suffered in the first spell of blistering hot weather. The early installation of awnings may easily save their cost by protecting furnishings, draperies and interiors against fading under exposure to sunshine."

The popularity of awnings is due not only to the beauty they add to homes and other buildings, but it is the practical consideration of protecting people and property from the blistering summer sun that makes the awnings of the Atlanta Tent and Awning Company so in demand. In addition, Mr. Couch pointed out that the actual saving to paint, to expensive draperies and furniture usually more than pays the small cost of an awning installation. The increased comfort and improved appearance of the home or building are in many cases just a free bonus to the awning buyer.

"Our entire facilities are at the disposal of home owners and our chief object is to satisfy customers with durable material and proper execution of their ideas in home decoration," Mr. Couch said.

POTATO GROWERS

Producers in 13 States Will Vote on Proposed Marketing Agreement.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Potato growers in 13 southern and western states will vote May 9 to 14 on whether they want the federal government to regulate marketing this year's crop, the Agriculture Department announced today.

Local farmer committees will designate days and places for voting in affected counties.

The referendum will be held in the principal potato producing counties in Alabama, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas, Virginia and Maryland. These states produce most of the "early" potatoes.

BABY IS FOUND BURIED IN CELLAR OF HOME

LOWELL, Mass., May 1.—(AP)—A Boston nurse was held tonight after the body of an infant, to which Assistant District Attorney O'Sullivan said she admitted giving birth unaided, was found buried in the cellar of her former home in nearby North Billerica.

O'Sullivan said the nurse, Miss Margaret Claffie, 26, would be arraigned in district court here tomorrow, but that the specific charge had not been decided upon.

BUILDING IN DIXIE GAINS 22 PER CENT
Construction Is Placed at 8-Month High.

BALTIMORE, May 1.—(AP)—Southern construction activity in April was the highest for the past eight months, the Manufacturers Record reported today.

Increases in residential and public building and in highway and bridge construction carried the month's total to $67,558,000, an increase of 22 per cent over March's figures and the highest monthly total since August.

Residential work totalled $11,586,000, almost twice the figure for March and most of it was of an individual character. The highway and bridge field boasted an increase of 26 per cent over the previous month.

SOUTHERN FLORIDA GRIPPED BY DROUGHT
Few Scattered Showers Provide Slight Relief.

MIAMI, Fla., May 1.—(AP)—An unprecedented drought which began seven months ago still gripped south Florida as April ended.

A few scattered showers and one thunderstorm provided momentary relief to small areas a week ago, but brilliant sunshine soon overcame their effect. The showers provided only .23 of an inch of rain in the Miami area during April, leaving a deficiency for the month of 2.86 inches.

The shortage in rainfall through the coastal and Everglades sections since October 1, was reported at more than 12 inches. Florida's underground rivers were credited with preventing a serious water shortage.

With Paint Line Can Now Offer Complete Home Service.

Adding to its already well-established policy of furnishing everything needed for a home or other building purposes, the DeKalb Supply Company, a 30-year business institution of Decatur, has recently taken on a complete line of the well-known Lucas paints and wallpapers.

With this addition the company can now supply every need for a finished home or commercial structure, or for rendering modernization service to those who wish to improve their property.

Lucas paints are known the country over. The company began business nearly a century ago—in 1849, to be exact—and it has spread its name and its products throughout the entire country. "We have added the Lucas line," said an official of the DeKalb Supply Company, "because we know of its large and varied paint products and its complete wallpaper line, and because, as is well said by the paint company itself, quality is now as it always has been in the past, the watchword for the manufacture of all Lucas products."

ZABAN FEATURES RUG CLEANING

Expensive Upholstery and Over-Draperies Included in List.

"More and more Atlanta housewives, as well as building owners and managers, are taking advantage of our up-to-date system of scientific cleaning moth-proofing rugs, draperies and upholstered furniture," says Harry C. Zaban, president of the Zaban Storage & Transfer Company.

The company makes a feature of this special work, and in addition operates a quick pick-up and delivery department, which makes a popular appeal to its customers.

"Our method, which is entirely odorless, enables us to clean the most expensive upholstered chairs, delicate fabrics, and both oriental and domestic rugs, in such a way that the material is returned to its original splendor. The process is done by hand, and we employ only those who have had training and practical experience in this work," continued Mr. Zaban.

The company employs the Karvan method of moth-proofing. It is backed by a three-year guarantee. "The Karvan concern receives a chart of every job done by Zaban, and a record kept of it on their books. With a cash reserve in the bank at Karvan's home office and with a record stamped on the customer's job by the bank, assurance is ample of the binding proof of the guarantee."

"We can moth-proof heavy carpets, overdraperies and furniture on the premises of the owner if desired," declared Mr. Zaban.

"We also provide storage during the hot summer months for furnishings. Ventilated individual rooms are provided in our spacious plant, where we have six large floors."

H. G. Keishian, well-known expert, is manager of the department, and Mr. Zaban invites free consultation with him at any time on your storage or rug-cleaning problems.

D. C. VOTERS FAVOR REPRESENTATION

Washington Citizens Also Prefer Right to Elect Local Officials.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Advocates of national representation for the District of Columbia commanded a 12-to-1 lead tonight with one-third of the ballots in yesterday's unofficial referendum still uncouneted.

Washington's voteless citizens also expressed a 7-to-1 preference for the right to elect local officials.

The count for two-thirds of an estimated total vote of 95,000 showed:

For national representations, 63,654; against 5,444.
For local suffrage, 60,289; against 8,742.

Residents of the district have no voice in the selection of local or national officials. Yesterday's balloting was merely an expression to congress.

When Mother Wore a Pork Pie Hat—

THAT was in 1867—the year that Rich's was born! A rakish job was the "pork pie"—perched on her "waterfall" chignon which cascaded down over a horse-hair frame. Her shoes were Balmoral Boots laced high and tight—and she probably wore a Eugenie peplum dress instead of the old-fashioned crinoline. Oh, she was quite a fashion plate—for SHE was an Atlanta Lady.

1867! The year that Rich's was born—and Atlanta mothers were already sending their daughters down town to us for ostrich feathers, piece goods and black lace parasols! Next Sunday when you remember Mother's Day—compliment the good taste of your mother and her mother and her mother's mother with a gift from Rich's—HER Atlanta Institution for Seventy-One Years.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

BOSTON, Mass., Friday.—While I was dressing on the train this morning, I wondered whether or not I would find my son, John, waiting for me on the platform, for I could not remember at what hour I told him we would arrive. He was there, however, towering above the gentlemen with cameras and flashlight bulbs, and we proceeded to the hotel where he ate a second breakfast with us.

There is one great advantage in getting off a night train early. You can unpack and have everything laid out, so that if the rest of the day is busy, it takes you the least possible time to change or get ready for whatever engagements you may have.

As usual, we ate our breakfast with frequent interruptions from the telephone bell. But as there were three of us to answer it, each of us succeeded in having some time to eat in peace. Today is not as warm as yesterday and it looks somewhat cloudy. I always hope for a good evening when I give a lecture, for the weather has some effect on the audience, though it matters less in a big city where people are not driving in from some distance.

Yesterday my attention was drawn to a speech by Mrs. Shepard Krech, president of the Maternity Center Association of New York City. She referred to the fact that eight years ago that association began a nation-wide campaign to make Mother's Day have a real bearing on the better care needed by our mothers and babies in the first year of infancy. It seems to me, that if we could link the celebration of Mother's Day with this educational campaign, much could be accomplished.

If every individual felt that on Mother's Day something should be done for an organization working in the maternity and infancy fields in their community, or for some individual needing care, we would soon find a great change in the conditions which now prevail. Many of us understand the difficulties which have brought about our low rating as a nation in the care of our mothers and babies.

Understand what our difficulties are, we are in a better position to overcome them. We certainly cannot rest when our nation has the third highest death rate for mothers in childbirth. The statistics published in Washington a few days ago show that only about 7 per cent of our people are properly nourished, about 43 per cent are more or less adequately fed and almost 50 per cent are undernourished. This, of course, has a bearing on the question of the maternity and infancy death rate. Under-nourishment is probably lacking due to an economic situation, but also in part to lack of education. Mothers and babies need to be well-fed and the mothers must know about food values. We do not sufficiently stress in our schools the type of preparation for living which the average family requires to feed itself properly, especially on a limited income.

With my cousin, Mrs. Alexander Grant, I visited two hospitals this morning, the House of the Good Samaritan and the Deaconess hospital, one of the federal emergency schools. I am now waiting for Johnny and Anne, my niece, Eleanor Roosevelt, and her mother, Mrs. John Cutter, all of whom are lunching with me.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

HOW NERVOUS MAY A WOMAN BE AT FORTY-EIGHT?

Kindly give me some advice for my nerves, asks a correspondent, as I am just reaching the critical time—the change of life.

Now, madam, you asked for it, remember. First, I earnestly advise you to throw out the almanac and the old (quack) doctor book and if possible your treasured collection of morbid notions about "female weakness," "feminine hygiene," "the sickness" concept of menstruation and the "delicate" idea of pregnancy. All that line of hokum is calculated to keep the gullible sex good customers for innumerable lines of nostrums and quackery. It is calculated to appeal to the childish imagination of the woman whose education has been shamefully neglected—the college woman, for instance. I refer of course to physical education and to education concerning sex.

The natural cessation of menstruation, which occurs generally around the age of 48 years—in some cases five years earlier or later—is not a critical, dangerous or serious happening. It accounts for no "change" of life, no particular change of appearance, temperament for behavior or feeling. It certainly causes no disturbance of the nervous system. Today, as education gradually penetrates the gullible sex more and more women are learning for themselves, from their own experience, that all I have said here is quite true.

So, if the majority of women are in no way upset or "changed" by the menopause (except the loss of fertility or the power to reproduce) the unenlightened minority who still go by the almanac and the testimonial have nothing to worry about as they approach middle age and nothing to be "nervous" about after they get there.

Of course I am aware that many ailments manifest themselves first around middle age—in men and women. I am singularly lacking in sympathy for anybody in any circumstance, but I wouldn't blame a woman for practicing a little nervous imposition at almost any time in her life if she can get away with it and smooth out her path a bit.

The woman who suffers from hot flashes or flushes does well to heed these suggestions:

(1) If more than 10 per cent overweight, change the diet habit in a moderate degree—particularly taking less refined carbohydrate.

(2) Favor, high-calorie diet as much as possible—milk, cheese, eggs, greens, peas, beans, carrots, nuts.

(3) Try supplementing the diet for a month or two or three times a year with additional calcium and vitamin D (which promotes utilization of calcium).

(4) If the hot flashes are too frequent and to distressing go to your physician for a series of intramuscular injections of ovarian hormone (variously called aminon, theelin, lutein, progynon).

Recently several women who began taking calcium and vitamin D (for other conditions) reported prompt relief of the hot flashes from which they had been suffering.

No woman who wishes to keep well can afford to ascribe any kind of "nervous" trouble to her age.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Bleeder State.

What is the cause of some person's blood not being able to stop running from a cut or bruise? (E. G.)

Answer: Hemophilia or the bleeder state is one cause. That is some deficiency in the fibrin forming function, inherited. Another cause in rare instances today is scurvy, from prolonged lack of vitamin C in the diet—lack of fresh fruits, fresh fruit juices, fresh vegetables or greens. A third cause of delayed clotting and excessive bleeding is shortage of calcium and vitamin D.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD, May 1.—Virginia Bruce, of the golden hair and peaches-and-cream complexion, has lost a goodly amount of poundage since her marriage. Which is just as well for the extremely smart outfit she wears week ends at Palm Springs. The jacket is a green and white waffle pique short-sleeved affair with wide revers, inset pockets and green bird buttons. The angora skirt and scarf are in the new attractive moss green. The white felt hat has a scalloped brim and green grosgrain band.

Genevieve Tobin, recently spotted lunching at Warner's green room, prefers the combination of pink and black with an emphasis on suede. Miss Tobin's dusky pink suede tailored jacket, bell-sleeved and fitted at the waist and featuring several pockets, topped a knee-length black suede skirt, black suede strap-sandals, a black suede pocketbook, and black suede pull-on gloves. Her dusky pink suede square-crowned hat was turned down over one eye and up in back.

Hollywood gals steal fashions from pictures before they reach the screen. Ruth Hussey, Metro feature player, noticed several men on the lot wearing jackets "Davy Crockett" buckskin jackets with fringed sleeves and trimmings. "They'd be perfect for a sports jacket," decided Miss Hussey, ordered one in bright green from the studio wardrobe and wore it to lunch next day in the commissary. Now everyone's copying the "Northwest Passage" jackets, so called because the costumes that launched the fad were for that picture.

Maureen O'Sullivan, appearing in "Hold That Kiss," revives the cowl collar for street wear in a navy blue wool crepe, with knife-pleated skirt and tailored bodice. The cowl collar is of black, red and white plaid, and when turned up becomes the ideal hat for the costume—if you can do it without breaking your neck.

Olivia de Havilland (modern prototype of the Gibson Girl) launches a Gibson girl fashion with a costume designed by Orry-Kelly consisting of a white blouse of white handkerchief linen, styled with long sleeves and much "blouse," an extremely full skirt of a novelty black wool sheer with a wide kid belt indicating the waistline. The bonnet-type hat is of straw with a black veil knotted into short streamers in back.

Astrology has invaded Hollywood fashions—with Priscilla Lane leading the parade. Since Priscilla was born on June 12, which comes under the sign of Gemini, the Twins, her white linen dress designed by Howard Shoup has a pair of narrow red kid belts to produce a high-low waistline, twin slot pockets, and twin red composition scottie clips at the neckline.

Emulating Clark Gable, who brought the turtle-neck sweater into a few years ago, Marci Ralston is now boosting the turtle-neck as a feminine fashion. She owns them in all colors for her spring suits, but particularly favors a sheer strawberry wool with a gray gabardine ensemble.

Joan Blondell designed the studs she wears on a powder blue sheer wool frock. The studs are oval silver discs, enameled with blue letters spelling out Joan's screen name, and worn down the front of the frock. Her sleeve studs are both initialed with "J."

Kay Francis goes in for what she terms "setting" dresses, in which the gown is subdued as the background for one perfect piece of jewelry or a striking corsage. On a straight-lined creamy crepe evening dress, she has no color accent outside of an emerald necklace, and on a draped black chiffon jersey gown she arranges a cluster of gardenias at the waistline.

Hollywood Fashions on Parade... Joan Bennett broadcasting in a yellow and red print gown on navy background, a navy coat with a great lynx collar, high-crowned brimless navy straw hat with yellow and red flowers and a lacy blue veil... Marie Wilson in a Beverly Hills shop purchasing two boleros—one of checkered kitchen tablecloth for daytime wear, another for the evening of marabou.

Twenty-Five Club.

Mrs. Thelma Brown was hostess recently to the Twenty-five Club. Ways and means were discussed for raising money for the Boy Scouts of North Atlanta.

Present were Mesdames Grace McCleskey, Frances Rowan, Doris Perry, Vivian Littlejohn, Thelma Brown, Edna Monroe, Daisy Sills, Verda Morrison, Florence Smith, Louise Lindsey, Ludele Bullard and Misses Mildred Chastain and Isla Mae Chafin.

Miss Mildred Chastain invited the club to meet at her home on May 10.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Chatfield in care The Atlanta Constitution.

A business woman who has been an outstanding success, holding the same position for many years, though she has worked for several employers during the time, says that the qualifications for being indispensable to the boss and therefore successful in business are the same as the qualifications for being a successful wife.

Summed up, they are: Be neat and sweet, dignified and discreet, systematic and economical. Study the individual man to please him, forgetting that there is any other man in the world; but don't go so far that he will take you for granted and regard you as a mechanical office device. Make him dependent upon you in the office and proud of you before his public. Be on tap to come and take charge when he calls but never step up to grab the spotlight from him. Don't correct him before others even when he's making a mistake but wait tactfully until the opportune moment arrives to set him straight.

So here's why the office wife makes such rough sledding for the home wife. She gives a man his money's worth in amiability, efficiency, feminine tact and diplomacy, at the same time catering to his sense of importance and making him feel essentially a big fellow. To collect her pay she must please and she's made her business to find out what pleases her employer.

The home wife has more and better reasons for putting her mind on the same subject for the business woman who loses out with one boss can usually find another desk at a new address and immediately get back on a paying basis, while the case of the home wife who's failed is not so simple. She may lose her man, her pay envelope, her confidence and her grip on life, things not so easily replaced as an envelope containing cash.

Once upon a time a good wife consisted in turning out flakey pies and fragrant loaves, sewing on buttons, darning socks and being at home when papa came. But times have changed and whether or not the office wife had a finger in the pie is a question. At least she's good enough sport to tip off the home wife as to what's expected of her. She's saying that the main concern of her life should be in keeping papa in good heart, in good spirits and in consequence satisfied with his married life and proud of his mama.

She's saying that a woman's personal attitude toward her husband is far more important than the mechanics of the household and that if she's systematic in that department and economical in her spending the house will run on greased wheels and the wife will have time and energy to dress up and go with her husband when and where he wants to go, play with him, entertain his friends, even be included in the business discussions if she doesn't butt in and tell the men that her judgment is better than theirs.

Home wives who won't listen and learn are either selfish or stupid for a man who has a clever woman catering to him at the office expects not less but more of the woman who presides over his home.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Bridge Lite

By HAROLD SHARPSTEEN

KING LEADS.

Against any contract, the king is considered one of the best attacking leads in bridge. Any time defender elects to call one of those gruff old codgers into action on the first lead, it is usually with some purpose in mind other than simply to get a peek at the dummy hand. The king is far too important a personage to be sent out snooping around like a ground hog looking for his shadow.

The opening lead of a king signals action... action without delay. Whenever he sacrifices his life in the battle of cards it is generally for the good cause of promotion, for his functions are far more important than beating an adverse queen or winning a trick over outstanding lower cards of his suit family.

Elementary knowledge of the meaning of conventional king leads is one of the cornerstones of sound defense.

AT NO-TRUMP.
Opened "blind" against a no-trump contract, no bid from partner, defender, by the lead of a king, indicates possession of a suit headed by one of three-honor or-card combinations:

(1) A K x x or longer; A K Q x or longer.

(2) K Q J x or longer.

(3) K Q 10 x or longer.

In case (1) the king is opened to win the first trick, to expose the dummy and to direct a return lead from partner. Except when holding the queen, defending leader seldom continues the suit. In case (2) declarer continues with the queen, when his king holds the first trick, followed by Jack if declarer still refuses to cover. In case (3) leader shifts to another suit, when his king holds the first trick, retaining his queen-10 tenace position over declarer.

AVOID KING LEAD.
Against a no-trump contract, the king of partner's suit is led when holding the king singleton,

New Compact With Magnifying Mirror Is Fitting Complement to Spring Outfit
By LILLIAN MAE.

You wouldn't wear shabby gloves, would you, with an otherwise new and attractive spring outfit? Well, then, would you in a new and attractive spring outfit withdraw from your new and attractive handbag, an old, worn compact to powder that spring-titled nose of yours? Surely not! I have just been presented with one of the most attractive timepieces I've ever seen—an entirely new spring model. It isn't just another compact—it's a definite makeup aid as well. It has a brand-new special feature which, so far as I know, cannot be found in any other vanity case on the market—a square magnifying mirror—which is slightly convex, and thereby magnifies the entire face instead of just one feature. Another thing—the features are not distorted in this magnifying mirror.

The nature of the mirror allows a complete makeup quickly and accurately. What a relief to really see yourself as others see you—eyes, cheeks and mouth all in one. This square compact is in gold-finish with sun-burst top design and a plain rectangular space on the bottom for engraving. It has a "leak-proof" loose powder compartment, and is thin enough to fit into the handbag without causing it to bulge.

Enthusiastic? Yes, I am. And I'm sure you will be too, if you will phone me at The Constitution for its name and the stores at which it may be purchased. Then act upon my suggestion to make your new wardrobe "just right" by purchasing one. And the price is another surprise—so reasonable! If you do not live in Atlanta, write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Your Waistline, Sir!

DOCTOR'S EXERCISES AT 80 TOO TREMENDOUS FOR AVERAGE MAN OF 40.

The average reporter is a skeptic by training, and not very long ago, when it became known that a member of the New York Athletic Club intended to celebrate his 80th birthday by running four miles around the track, there was some speculation among the gentlemen of the press as to whether he would even show up.

They just didn't know Dr. Graeme H. Hammond. "Why, I always run three miles three times a week," Dr. Hammond told me later, "and I thought it only fitting that I run four on my birthday. I get going at a jog trot and keep it up. I am not out for speed at my age—that would be silly. What I want is a good sweating, and I get it. Been doing it for years."

That is how a doctor of 80 keeps fit, and if many of you half his age can run four miles in an afternoon, I would be surprised. As a matter of fact, the good doctor would not recommend it for you—unless you are used to exercise. Dr. Hammond began his athletic career in college. He was a member of the crew, went out for football and broke all kinds of records in track. In one afternoon he won the quarter mile and the half, and came in second in the mile race.

And how about golf? Well, in 10 or 12 years Dr. Hammond thinks he may get around to golf. "Not much exercise in golf, or jackstraws," he says with a chuckle, "but I may get around to it yet."

As to diet, Dr. Hammond eats anything that is set before him, but he eats only two meals a day, breakfast and dinner, and he eats sparingly. In his opinion, "The average man could prolong his life by 10 years by moderating his appetite for food." Dr. Hammond likes an occasional highball and he smokes, but he never does anything to excess.

And there is a program for you! You will not find any better advice than is given here by this young man of 80.

Your Dietitian,

IDA JEAN KAIN.

Vigorous physical activity helps rid the body of poisons.

The following will have outstanding parts: Jack Noland as the piper; Tommy Goodwin, master of merry songs; Ernestine Roan as the poet; and Francis Wallace as fairy poet.

The student body will participate in sports, games, dances and songs which will culminate the year's activities.

The program is under direction of Lil Connell, chairman of dramatics, and Katherine Carter, director of the dances and costumes.

What Are You Doing for Johnny?

By Miner & Carter DRUGGISTS

By "Johnny" we mean that boy of yours—the little chap that you think is the finest in the world. "Nothing I wouldn't do for him," you say. But, are you watching to see that he keeps well and fit? When he has a cough or cold, if he is fretful or complaining, do you see that he gets quick and competent help? Or do you let the trouble take care of itself?

Please stop and think. That cold, that peevishness, an ache or a pain means that your child is not well. Call in your doctor and you may save suffering, expense and regret.

See the doctor—then go to the druggist he recommends.

U. D. C. Chapter Holds Meeting

Crawford W. Long U. D. C. Chapter met recently with Mrs. Mae R. Fricks in her home, Mrs. A. H. Strickland, the president, presiding.

The chapter went on record protesting the naming of a liquor store "Henry Grady." The secretary was instructed to order a federal tree marker for the tree planted recently at the Confederate Soldiers' Home. The chapter also agreed to make chair covers for the porch chairs at the Confederate Soldiers' Home.

The program chairman, Mrs. Mae R. Fricks, sponsored a memorial program. Mrs. Vail Blake-more stated that there were only 2,039 living Confederate veterans in the United States, and that Georgia has only 100 veterans still living. Readings were given by Mrs. M. M. Barron, Mrs. Mamie Reed and Mrs. J. S. Blick. Mrs. Mae R. Fricks told interesting facts of the life of Alexander Stephen. Miss Margaret Fricks the hostess, rendered piano music.

Buffet Supper Honors Popular Bridal Pair

Miss Dorothy Dean, popular bride-elect, and her fiancé, William M. Mason, whose marriage will be an important social event of this week, were the honor guests Friday evening at the buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. George K. Selden and Miss Carolyn Selden at their home on Walker terrace.

Assisting the hosts in entertaining the guests, who were limited to members of the Dean-Mason wedding party, were Mrs. H. Ewing Dean, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Anita Stewart Armstrong.

The table in the dining room was covered with a real lace cloth and filled with Easter lilies. On either side were silver candelabra holding white burning tapers. Miss Dean was honored at the luncheon given Friday by Mrs. C. Boyd Woolford at her home on Andrews drive.

Mrs. H. Ewing Dean, mother of the bride-elect, assisted Mrs. Woolford in entertaining. The table in the dining room was appointed with Venetian lace mats and centered with a miniature bride scene augmented with white calla lilies. The wedding attendants and a limited group of friends were present.

Kentucky and Tennessee Garden Clubs To Hear Mrs. Hastings Speak

By Sally Fortth.

EVEN though she is no longer president of the Garden Club of Georgia, garden clubs everywhere are so accustomed to calling on Mrs. Donald Hastings that she continues in demand as a speaker for their meetings. Leaving today for Paris, Ky., she will be the featured speaker at the state convention of the Garden Club of Kentucky.

At this meeting, however, she will share honors with Mr. Hastings, who will accompany her to Paris, where they will be guests of Mrs. W. K. Wallis, vice president of the National Council of Garden Clubs. Both are scheduled to speak on Wednesday. Mr. Hastings will talk to the state assemblage at the morning session on the subject of roses, and Mrs. Hastings will speak at the evening banquet on "The Purpose of a Garden Club."

Following the Kentucky meeting, Mr. and Mrs. Hastings will go to Knoxville to attend the Tennessee Garden Club convention, where both will again be called on in the role of speaker. A garden school will be held in connection with this meeting, and Mr. Hastings will address the school on Friday on "New and Improved Garden Seeds." Mrs. Hastings will give a brief, informal talk on a subject of her own choosing before the Garden Club of Tennessee.

ATLANTA friends of Maude Kimball Massengale were happily surprised on Saturday when she arrived in Atlanta from Miami for a few days' visit. The visitor, as you know, is a former Atlantan, who returns annually to the city where she lived for many years before going to Miami for residence 12 years ago.

Mrs. Massengale is en route to Washington to visit friends and relatives. Before returning south she will spend a week or so in New York renewing friendships with Miami's winter residents.

What a variety of interesting experiences Mrs. Massengale has had since her visit here last summer! Counted among Miami's best known newspaper women, Mrs. Massengale has turned her attention to reporting by way of radio. Throughout the past winter she has given twice weekly over the Miami Beach radio station broadcasts covering in spoken words the day social events assembling members of the fashionable set spending the winter in Miami.

"Society On the Air" is the title applied to Mrs. Massengale's broadcast which reveals intimate news pertaining to smart society. In addition to her radio work, Mrs. Massengale is editor of "The Year Rounder," a society magazine featuring pictures and articles relative to Miami Beach residents. She writes a breezy, interesting column each week under the caption, "Beach Murmurs," in the weekly magazine, Miami Beach Tropics.

Atlanta friends of this prominent visitor are urging her to stop in Atlanta for a longer visit en route to Miami in early June.

FRIENDS here of Bill Booth will be interested to learn that this popular former Atlantan is now residing in Coronado Beach, Cal., and has been joined there by his mother, Mrs. Eugene Booth. Bill, who you know, was in the medical corps of the United States navy for nine years and recently resigned from government service to enter the practice of his chosen profession.

Prior to his detail in the west, Bill lived here and was one of the most popular bachelors in Atlanta society—a handsome figure attending the various dances and social affairs among the younger set. A splendid dancer, with a charm of manner and pleasing personality, he is on countless friends here and in the service who will join with Sally Fortth in wishing him continued success in his chosen career.

West End Civic Club To Meet Wednesday

Civic Club of West End will meet on Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock at the clubhouse with the president, Mrs. W. L. McCalley Jr., presiding.

An interesting feature of the program will be a talk by Adjutant Lieutenant W. D. Veal of the police patrol of the state highway. Mrs. P. D. Johnson, chairman of the division of safety, will introduce the speaker.

Mrs. Karl Markt will entertain the members of the fine arts department today at her home on Gordon place. Programs for the year will be planned.

Guests will include Mrs. P. G. Saxton, president; Mrs. Dupree Johnson, industrial and school art; Mrs. E. Suttles, penny art fund; Mrs. W. Johnson, American pottery; Mrs. A. H. Cochran, music; Mrs. Lon Living, commercial singing; Mrs. J. H. Bible literature; Mrs. Claude Key, poetry; Mrs. K. Mark, drama; Mrs. L. A. Hill, drama; Mrs. R. T. Connally, art; Mrs. W. L. McCalley Jr., president.

Mesdames McCalley, E. Turner, R. Grimes, H. A. Watts and H. B. Blackshear attended the convention of the G. F. W. C. held in Albany last week.

Woodcrest Club Elects Officers.

The Woodcrest Woman's Club met recently at Woodcrest. Mrs. J. W. Taylor, chairman, and Mrs. Jerome Smith, co-chairman, of ways and means committee, announced that a benefit bingo party will be given at the clubhouse May 19. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Taylor or Mrs. Smith. Many valuable prizes will be given and a handsome quilt made by the members will be exhibited.

The nominating committee presented the names of the new officers as follows: Mrs. R. O. Todd, president; Mrs. C. L. Stoddard, first vice president; Mrs. I. A. Thomas, second vice president; Mrs. G. Moore, recording secretary; Mrs. Bessie Harris, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Howard Mallory, treasurer, and Mrs. M. F. Mobley, parliamentarian. These officers will be installed at the May meeting.

Two new members were welcomed into the club, Mrs. Fred McRae and Mrs. W. J. Poole.

Mrs. Murray Howard, from the Needle Work Guild brought an interesting message.

The chief feature on the club program was the inspirational address on "Citizenship," by William G. McRae.

Wed at Church Ceremony

Constitution Staff Photo—Slayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Crocker Jr., whose marriage was solemnized Saturday morning at the Peachtree Christian church, Mrs. Crocker is the former Miss Mary Ella Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Rogers. Following their wedding trip Mr. Crocker and his bride will reside in Chicago.

Mrs. Lee Green Wins Sweepstakes At Avondale Club Flower Show

Mrs. Lee A. Green won the sweepstakes prize for being given the most blue ribbons at the annual flower show of the Avondale Garden Club held at the Avondale Community clubhouse on April 27. Special mention was given Mrs. S. L. Jones for the most outstanding exhibit, which consisted of a collection of magnificent climbing roses artistically displayed as a center piece.

Many visitors from Atlanta and from other near-by places attended the show during the afternoon and evening.

Blue ribbon winners were Mesdames Harley Brown, Lee A. Green, C. H. David, O. C. Waters, L. E. Coffin, J. L. Bond, S. L. Jones, B. S. Forkner, E. B. Worsham, C. C. Sloan, W. H. Goulder, C. O. Walker, J. C. Davis, O. C. Waters, L. Murphy, L. E. Coffin, S. L. Jones and J. L. Bond.

Honorable mention was given to Mrs. L. E. Coffin for an exhibit of climbing roses and to several exhibitors on iris who did not receive ribbons. Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown, Mrs. Stanley Hastings and Nelson Crist were the judges.

Prize-Winning Scrapbooks To Be Shown by Garden Clubs

The prize-winning scrapbooks and yearbooks, belonging to the Garden Clubs of Georgia will be on display at the Garden Center this week. These books were judged at the convention held here last week.

Last week Mrs. H. K. Harrington, for the Cascade Garden Club; Mrs. P. Thornton Mayre, for the Planters' Garden Club; Mrs. John A. Hynds, for the Neighborhood Garden Club; the Oakland City Garden Club; Mrs. Frank C. Owens, of the Piedmont Garden Club, and Mrs. Hoyt Trimble for the garden division of the College Park Woman's Club made flower arrangements at the center. Consistent the week end at Cashiers, N. C., where they attended a reunion of the Zachary family.

Mrs. Leila Crawford and daughter, Geraldine, of Fort Valley, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Crawford.

Mrs. Poundstone Is Stated To Head U. D. C. of Atlanta

Mrs. Odie Poundstone was nominated for president of the Atlanta Chapter U. D. C. at a meeting of the chapter on Saturday at the chapter house. The election takes place at the annual meeting of the chapter on May 24.

Officers nominated to serve with Mrs. Poundstone are Mesdames C. J. Sheehan, first vice president; Arthur Allen, second vice president; G. H. Faust, third vice president; F. B. Davenport, recording secretary; T. J. Watkins, corresponding secretary; D. M. Rothenberg, treasurer; R. F. Sweeney, registrar; James A. Erwin, recorder of crosses; Sally Long, historian; James H. Thornton, auditor.

Mrs. Forrest Kibler, the retiring president, completes a three-year regime, one of the most successful in the history of the chapter. Through many years of service to the U. D. C. Mrs. Kibler has acquired an unusual knowledge of every phase of the work and this has culminated in the record of splendid achievement during her administration. Outstanding activities during the past three years have been the observance of Memorial Day in Atlanta on July 22, anniversary of the Battle of Atlanta and the flying of the Confederate flag on that day at Five Points. Presentation of the battle flag to fly from a 75-foot flagstaff at the Cyclorama.

She also arranged the presentation of an oil painting of Jefferson Davis to Rhodes Memorial Hall for the Department of Archives and history of Georgia; entertained the children of the Confederacy convention in June, 1936; sponsored by building of the Alice Baxler Cottage at the Rabun Gap Nacoochee school.

She inaugurated and led the successful protest in preventing Confederate prisoners from being placed on the old age pension list of Georgia; secured legislation for the purchase of the John B. Gordon home by the state; the restoration of the Resaca Confederate cemetery and placing a bronze tablet there designating it the oldest Confederate cemetery and honoring the memory of Miss Mary Green, the donor.

Officers who have served with Mrs. Kibler during the past two years are Mesdames W. F. Dykes, Odie Poundstone, B. Davenport, George Wall, W. H. Goulder, W. A. Spiller, B. S. Forkner, H. M. Van Devender, R. H. Peavy, Ford H. Pratt, J. C. Davis, O. C. Waters, L. Murphy, L. E. Coffin, S. L. Jones and J. L. Bond.

White ribbon winners were Mesdames S. L. Jones, Lee A. Green, George Wall, Claude Daugherty, E. B. Worsham, L. E. Coffin, B. S. Forkner, O. C. Waters, W. H. Goulder, O. S. Walker, J. C. Davis, J. L. Bond, Ford H. Pratt, R. H. Peavy, C. H. David and C. C. Sloan.

Honorable mention was given to Mrs. L. E. Coffin for an exhibit of climbing roses and to several exhibitors on iris who did not receive ribbons. Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown, Mrs. Stanley Hastings and Nelson Crist were the judges.

Annual reports by all officers and chairmen will be given at the meeting.

Shakespeare Class.

Shakespeare Class of 1896 celebrated the poets birthday at the home of their president, Mrs. M. L. Brittain, recently.

An interesting feature of the program was a test in finding hidden names of Shakespearean characters in a paragraph. Five perfect papers were turned in. The prize, a picture of Hamlet, went to Mrs. S. B. Mitchell.

Mrs. Brittain was assisted in entertaining by her daughter, Mrs. Spann W. Milner.

MR. ZERO

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH

INSTALLMENT XXIII

Mr. Brook shook his head. "I do not think so. I cannot believe that her assignment was with Sir Francis, first because I am quite sure that he would not have asked such a meeting and could have had no possible motive for it, and next because of the unfinished letter. If he had been planning to go out he would either have finished the letter first or put it off writing it until afterwards."

Colonel Anstruther received this with skepticism. "There may be something that we don't know about—unknown factor—there very often is. You make your theory, and something comes along and upsets it. To my mind it's a perfectly plain case as far as the murder is concerned. The unknown factor is that we don't know what Lady Colesborough was up to. She may have been meeting someone or she may not, but I think Colesborough caught her out, and I think she shot him with his own pistol. There isn't a particle of evidence except her own to show that there was any other man there at the time—no 'particle.' "Well," said Brook, "I don't agree with you about there being no evidence, because it's an undisputed fact that Mr. Somers, if not there, at least very near at the time that the shot was fired. He says he was on the edge of the lawn at the point where the path comes out when he heard the shot. We have only his own word for that. He may have been nearer—he may have been very much nearer indeed."

that time it was considered rather more than probable that the theft had taken place before Mr. Lushington left town. Mr. Somers had the opportunity of substituting the dummy envelope which was found when Mr. Lushington opened his despatch case. In fact, Mr. Somers fills the bill very neatly. "Mr. Lushington has complete confidence in him, but it is certain that Mr. Somers knew about the visit to Wellings, that he knew about the report, and that he knew the report had been taken to Wellings. He could very easily have rung Lady Colesborough up. There remains the damning fact that the man who knew these things was here in the grounds of Cole Lester at the hour of Lady Colesborough's appointment with Mr. Zero, and at the moment when Sir Francis Colesborough was shot. "Bless my soul!" said Colonel Anstruther in a tone of dismay. Mr. Brook got up and pressed the bell. "I think we must ask Mr. Somers to explain himself," he said. "Algy Somers came into the room, and found it hostile. Colonel Anstruther was standing with his back to the fire. Inspector Boyce sat stiffly at the writing table. Mr. Brook, whom he knew by sight, looked up from a notebook and then down again. It was borne in upon Algy that he was here not only to be questioned, but also to show good reason why the suspicions of the occasion should not be focussed upon him. It was a very disquieting impression. The chief constable opened the proceedings. "I should be glad if you would repeat your account of what happened last night, Mr. Somers."

"You see," said Mr. Brook, "we have to consider what we know about Mr. Zero. I believe Lady Colesborough was telling the truth when she described the various telephone conversations and the interview she had with him in the yew walk. At this interview, more than 12 hours before the report was afterwards stolen had reached Mr. Lushington, Mr. Zero was making his plans for having it stolen. He knew what it was and when it would be delivered. "He couldn't have known that Mr. Lushington would take it down to Wellings. "Consider what he did know, Colonel Anstruther. He knew that Mr. Lushington was going away. He knew that the report would be delivered to him before he went. I think we may assume that he knew Mr. Lushington was in the habit of taking papers away with him in any case, the last instructions were given to Lady Colesborough by telephone at 5 o'clock on the Saturday afternoon, some hours after Mr. Lushington had left for Wellings with the report in his possession. It is quite certain that Mr. Zero knew this. "Now, in looking for Mr. Zero, we have to look for someone who was in a position to know all these things. Mr. Somers is in such a position. He is a member of Mr. Lushington's staff and also of his family. He knew that the report was expected. He actually handled it and conveyed it to Mr. Lushington. He has been under suspicion from the first, but at

"Well, I was having a bath when she rang up—I suppose it was about 7 o'clock. By the way, she didn't ask me to drive her to Cole Lester, she asked me to lend her my car. I wouldn't do that, but I offered to drive her, and she stipulated that I shouldn't ask where we were going. "And when did you find out?" There was a sneering tone in Colonel Anstruther's voice. "When Miss Hardwicke told me to make for a village called Colebrook, I guessed at once that she was going to Cole Lester to see her cousin," Algy said. "And you want us to believe that you asked no questions?" "I had promised not to, sir. "Perhaps you were going down to Cole Lester in any case?" Algy allowed himself to be surprised. "Oh, no, sir. My acquaintance with Lady Colesborough is very slight. "Have you ever talked to her on the telephone?" "Certainly not."

Mr. Brook looked up. "Did Miss Hardwicke give you any explanation of why she was going down to see her cousin in the middle of the night?" "No, she didn't tell me anything."

"But you didn't know it last night?" "How could I know it? The place was utterly strange to me. "You had never been there before?" "I had never been there before."

"You had never met Lady Colesborough in these grounds?" Algy smiled and answered, "I had met Lady Colesborough exactly three times before last night—twice at a night club, the Duck and Drakes, where she was with a party and I was with Miss Hardwicke, and once at the flat of some cousin of mine, the Westgate where we dined at the same table and I afterwards talked to her for about ten minutes in the midst of a crowd of people. "You haven't answered my question, Mr. Somers. "I thought I had. I have certainly never met Lady Colesborough either here or anywhere else by that you mean a clandestine meeting."

RECORDS OF SPEED.
I—Fast Runners.

What a slow little walker the snail is! On its one foot, it goes forward bit by bit over the land. A "snail speed record" tells us the animal covered ground at the rate of one and a half inches in a second. At that rate a snail would travel seven and a half feet in a minute, or 450 feet in an hour.

Greyhounds and whippets can go faster than men or elephant. These dogs, built for speed, sometimes cover the ground at the rate of 35 or 36 miles per hour. The records have been made for distances of a quarter of a mile or less.

Jack rabbits are noted for the speed. One of them was chased over level stretch by a man in an automobile, and ran a mile in one minute and 20 seconds. This was faster than any animal ever has run on a race track.

Gazelles and pronghorns can run a mile a minute but there is another animal which is even made to run a mile in eight seconds, which is better than the best done by Frank Wykoff or Jesse Owens.

People sometimes suppose that snakes move very fast, but the speed records given for them are low. The gopher snake is said to crawl one and one-fifth miles per hour, and the pathosness snake less than one and a half miles an hour. Even the red racer makes only about three and a half miles per hour, which is slower than a man can walk.

Sometimes a pig can run at the rate of 10 or 11 miles an hour, but a man can catch a pig—even if it is greedy! Our best long-distance runners can run a mile in just a bit over four minutes. They cover the mile at the rate of just about 14 miles an hour.

In a race of 100 yards, some track stars run the distance in less than 10 seconds. If a man could keep up the speed of 10 yards a second, he would go a little more than one-third of a mile in a minute, or about 20 miles an hour. In real fact, no man can hold that fast that long. Ten years ago, Paavo Nurmi, the "Flying Finn"—ran almost 12 miles in a hour, but that is the best a human runner has been able to do so far.

An elephant is a big animal, and looks clumsy, but when it charges an enemy, it can go very fast. A charge it can cover 100 yards in eight seconds, which is better than the best done by Frank Wykoff or Jesse Owens.

In real fact, no man can hold that fast that long. Ten years ago, Paavo Nurmi, the "Flying Finn"—ran almost 12 miles in a hour, but that is the best a human runner has been able to do so far.

An elephant is a big animal, and looks clumsy, but when it charges an enemy, it can go very fast. A charge it can cover 100 yards in eight seconds, which is better than the best done by Frank Wykoff or Jesse Owens.

Greyhounds and whippets can go faster than men or elephant. These dogs, built for speed, sometimes cover the ground at the rate of 35 or 36 miles per hour. The records have been made for distances of a quarter of a mile or less.

Jack rabbits are noted for the speed. One of them was chased over level stretch by a man in an automobile, and ran a mile in one minute and 20 seconds. This was faster than any animal ever has run on a race track.

Gazelles and pronghorns can run a mile a minute but there is another animal which is even made to run a mile in eight seconds, which is better than the best done by Frank Wykoff or Jesse Owens.

People sometimes suppose that snakes move very fast, but the speed records given for them are low. The gopher snake is said to crawl one and one-fifth miles per hour, and the pathosness snake less than one and a half miles an hour. Even the red racer makes only about three and a half miles per hour, which is slower than a man can walk.

Sometimes a pig can run at the rate of 10 or 11 miles an hour, but a man can catch a pig—even if it is greedy! Our best long-distance runners can run a mile in just a bit over four minutes. They cover the mile at the rate of just about 14 miles an hour.

In a race of 100 yards, some track stars run the distance in less than 10 seconds. If a man could keep up the speed of 10 yards a second, he would go a little more than one-third of a mile in a minute, or about 20 miles an hour. In real fact, no man can hold that fast that long. Ten years ago, Paavo Nurmi, the "Flying Finn"—ran almost 12 miles in a hour, but that is the best a human runner has been able to do so far.
